Twice-claimed this year, El Escorial held off a stretch charge by No Help to win the Times Handicap Saturday at Sandown Park and run its thoroughbred racing earnings to $14,000. For the fourth racing day in a row the bettors set a record, pouring $267,009 through the mutuels to top the previous single-day high by a whopping $87,000. In six days of racing so far, $989,282 has been wagered. Page 11.

'...PUT A FEW IN JAIL'

TORONTO (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau, asked Sunday about possible refusal by some unions to support new federal wage and price controls, said mockingly:

"We'll put a few union leaders . . . in jail for three years and the others will get the message."

During the show, Let's Discuss It, broadcast on CFRB, Trudeau said:

"We'll have to keep authoritarian forms around longer" if Canadians are not prepared to practise self-restraint.

Also in Toronto on the weekend, Finance Minister Donald Macdonald said Ottawa may drop its proposed freeze on stock dividends, as a result of public criticism.

Macdonald told a meeting of Toronto Liberals that the dividend-freeze proposal, part of the government's anti-inflation program, may be changed.

"We realize the difficulties of the dividend problem and we will be re-examining this within the context of the guidelines," he said.

Private Mail Service Launched for B.C.

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

A British Columbia-wide private mail service was launched in Victoria today with the first delivery to business firms starting Tuesday and for homes beginning Friday.

The service to 14 B.C. cities is being organized in Victoria by retired businessman George Ferguson, who is hiring hundreds of people, mainly striking postal workers.

"There could be thousands of workers involved and hundreds of thousands of pieces of mail — if the strike continues," he said.

B.C. headquarters at the moment is the lobby of the Ingraham Hotel, where mail is dropped into plastic bags. It will be sorted in a hotel room. From there it is either delivered in Victoria or transported to some other B.C. point.

'Not Strike-Breaking'

"A large number of postal workers from around the province are phoning in asking for jobs," he said.

"I do not consider this to be strike-breaking on my part because they are volunteering to work. They want to make some money."

The money is by piecework. Mail sorters will get five cents a letter while carriers get 10 cents a letter for delivery.

Mail deliveries will begin in Greater Victoria and Vancouver Tuesday for stores only. It will be Friday before the first mail delivery to homes is organized in B.C.

A spokesman for the Canadian Union of Postal Workers said today the union won't stand in the way of workers who want to get money by working for the new service.

Stan Darlington said most of the postal workers are in poor financial position as a result of low wages and "if they can get employment we wouldn't want to stand in their way."

"If they need the money we hope they're able to get some," he added.

It is questionable, however, whether the new service constitutes strike-breaking, Darlington said, and it may be contrary to the Post Office Act which provides that only the post-master general can deliver mail.

Sorting Rooms a Problem

The service will carry letters only — no parcels, no registered mail, nothing with cash or securities. The charge is 30 cents for each local letter and 50 cents for out-of-town mail.

"Organizing this hasn't been easy," Ferguson said.

"Most of the people involved will be postal workers because they are experienced in this type of work. But I will hire anyone who is interested."

Finding sorting rooms in each city is a major problem. This will be resolved before nightfall by accepting an offer from some real estate company that operates province-wide or from some other similar firm.

Cities already organized into the service are Greater Victoria, Greater Vancouver including New Westminster, Nanaimo, Kamloops, Kelowna, Penticton, Vernon, Prince George, Prince Rupert, Dawson Creek, Nelson, Trail Salmon Arm.

"More cities will be added and, if this strike continues, we will move into other provinces as well," Ferguson said.

"I decided to go into this thing because I saw a need. I'm not going to pretend it was an act of charity on my part. I hope to make a lot of money out of this. But if the strike ends quickly I could lose a lot because I have already spent money on advertising.

"The main thing is somebody has to do this and I don't think they should charge a rip-off price. The chamber of commerce was talking about three dollars a letter — shouldn't cost that much.

Ferguson got experience in organizing deliveries as circulation manager of a newspaper in Prince George 15 years ago. Although he is officially retired, his wife operates West Bay Charter, an Esquimalt firm that leases fishing boats for sport fishing.

She is assisting him in the mail service venture.

The name of the service is BeCems, which stands for B.C. Emergency Mail Service.

"We are not planning to incorporate a company, however, because that would take at least two weeks and the strike might not last that long. It is difficult to organize a business when the whole thing could end at any moment."

HOW TO GRIPE

Starting Wednesday, newspapers throughout the province will carry notices detailing steps consumers and suppliers should take if they want to complain about price hikes, Consumer Services Minister Phyllis Young announced today.

The freeze became effective at 5 p.m. Friday and disallows any increases at the processing, wholesaling and retailing levels of sales in foods, beverages, prescription drugs, and proprietary and patent medicine: It does not apply to restaurant, farmer or fishermen sales and it expires Jan. 1, 1976.

Consumers who discover price increases are asked to first bring them to the attention of the seller, Young said.

If they get no satisfaction, forms will be included in the newspaper advertisement on which complaints can be made and forwarded to the consumers service department which is administering the program.

Because of the mail strike, forms should either be dropped off at one of the four consumer services regional offices, or government agents offices. Complaints can also be phoned in by calling the regional offices collect.

While the department will be relying on individual consumers, some government staff will be monitoring the prices of essential goods, said Young, and an additional and temporary staff of close to a dozen will be hired for the job.

Where the department does not get satisfaction from sellers, its enforcement branch will take court action under the summary conviction act, said Young, and fines will be up to a maximum of $500 or six months in jail or both.

If prices skyrocket on Jan. 1, when the freeze is lifted, it will be the job of the federal anti-inflation board to investigate, said the minister.

Consumers will simply have to change their shoppping patterns if food shelves go bare as a result of B.C.'s 68-day price freeze, Consumers' Services Minister Phyllis Young said today.

The minister defended B.C's move to freeze all food, drug and energy prices, and said food chains should not allow shortages of products but if they do people will have to learn to shop around.

Premier Barrett said this morning food chain owners cannot "go on strike" and supermarkets will have to make sacrifices like every other sector of the economy.

"If supermarkets come crying for special attention then they are not doing the Canadian thing," he said.

Workers have to accept decreased wage earnings and thus, to be fair, food stores will have to accept lower prices, said Barrett, adding that B.C. is simply following the federal initiatives.

But, in Vancouver, federal Justice Minister Ron Basford said Sunday the B.C. government's price freeze on essential goods and services invites a sudden, wild increase in prices once the freeze is lifted Jan. 1.

The federal government will not oppose the freeze, Basford said, but he gave no indication it would consider taking specific action to protect consumers from any after-effects of the freeze — "that is a provincial matter."

Spokesman for Super Valu stores said Saturday the freeze on food prices will mean tremendous shortages because so many products are purchased from outside B.C. and stores will lose money if prices of those goods go up.

Barrett said the government considered that problem and therefore the freeze was kept to 68 days. But he said stores will simply have to make sacrifices to get around that problem.

Young said the statements of food chain operators are "an overreaction, bordering on irresponsibility."

March Clogs Port

MARRAKESH, Morocco (UPI) — The mobilization of Moroccans for a massive "march of peace" into Spanish Sahara has strengthened King Hassan II's hold on power, but has dislocated his nation's economy.

Businessmen said Sunday the march has clogged the port at Casablanca with arriving shipments, crippled some commuter bus service and caused partial food shortages.

But political observers said the march has brought the most fervent monarchist sentiment since Hassan's father, King Mohammed V, returned from exile 20 years ago to usher in Morocco's independence.

Hundreds of thousands of Moroccans gathered in vast tent cities, but Hassan held off signalling the start of the march after talks with UN Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim.

Waldheim conferred with the monarch in Marrakesh Sunday in hopes of defusing the "explosive" situation created by the threatened march of 350,000 unarmed civilians into the Spanish-ruled colony.

MADRID (P) — Gen. Francisco Franco survived heart attacks and hemorrhaging early today, but developed a fever in the afternoon, the Spanish dictator's doctors reported.

They said his intestinal hemorrhaging was under control and heart irregularities had ceased, but signs of heart failure continued, accompanied by a "light fever."

Mail Talks On Again

OTTAWA (UPI) — Postmaster-General Bryce Mackasey ordered government negotiators to resume talks today with postal workers who have been on strike for the past week.

Resumption of the talks, expected to begin at 2 p.m. EST, signalled the first break in the nationwide strike by 22,000 members of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers.

The postmaster-general, moving to break an impasse that has stalled efforts to resume negotiations, said issues could be taken up in any order desired.

Union officials charged the government had refused to bargain on non-economic matters until the CUPW had accepted a government wage offer. Macaksey denied lodging an ultimatum.

In a letter to the union, Mackasey said the government was setting forth a package of outstanding issues and that "items of the package can be discussed in any order desired."

There was no indication from CUPW officials of any immediate return to work but Mackasey's move was welcomed.

"It's about time," chief CUPW negotiator Jean-Claude Parrot said. "Now that the ultimatum is withdrawn perhaps we can proceed with normal bargaining."

He declined to speculate on the government's package offer: "I only hope his first proposals will show the same kind of flexibility we did in our last counter-proposals just before the strike started."

Beirut Fight Moves To 'No-Man's Land'

BEIRUT (WP) — Heavy fighting in a key sector of modern Beirut eased off Sunday night in what optimists hoped was compliance with yet another in a series of hitherto flouted cease-fires.

Militiamen of the right-wing Christian Phalange were pitted against invading left-wing Lebanese and Palestinian troops in what until Saturday morning had been a kind of no-mans-land in the elegant Kantari neighborhood.

But the spread of fighting to Kantari has apparently served as a trip wire for many Western embassies and businesses now reported planning for at least temporary evacuation of dependents and breadwinners whose jobs are not considered absolutely essential.

The main fighting was thought to have see-sawed as the attackers holding the high ground apparently first forced the Phalange off a "lip" of terrain in three key side streets. But judging by the din of battle, the Phalangists had fought their way back under cover of darkness to a midway point some 200 yards up the hills. It is there that the terrain levels out again.

It was not immediately clear whether the relative slackening of fighting was due to a cabinet session which had agreed on the eighth cease-fire since the current bout of fighting erupted nearly seven weeks ago. At least 3,000 persons have been killed since the beginning of the fighting in April and the once-prosperous economy has come to a halt.

U.S. Plan to Invade Canada Found—56 Years Later

WASHINGTON (WP) — Fifty-six years after it was drawn up, a bizarre U.S. Army plan to invade Canada has been unearthed by a Midwest historian.

The plan — which was kept classified by the Army until last month — calls for defending the border along North Dakota and Montana by invading Canada's vast and barren Saskatchewan province either by tank or on horseback backed by artillery support from huge cannon mounted on railway cars.

A supporting program of aerial photo-reconnaissance along the 500-mile border was scrapped when the Army Air Corps and the Corps of Engineers disagreed over who would pay for the cameras.

"I'm no military strategist," said Dr. Lawrence H. Larsen, who prevailed upon the Army to declassify the plan after it was discovered in the federal records centre in Kansas City last month, "but to me it looks ludicrous."

The plan, which includes an inch-thick stack of blueprints, maps, charts and letters, was created by the Corps of Engineers in 1919 after it was discovered that the United States had no provision for defending its land borders, Larsen said.

It lay moldering under its confidential seal until it was discovered by officials at the federal records centre in September and turned over to Larsen, who was looking for topics for students in his history class at the University of Missouri at Kansas City.

Among the Options A through G prepared by the corps' strategists was one, Larsen said, that involved retreating to below the Missouri River in the face of an advance from Canada.

Another option offered a pincer movement into Saskatchewan. The pincers were to meet somewhere on the prairie north of the border. "It appeared," said Larsen, "to be a pincer that closed on nowhere."

A spokesman for the Canadian Department of National Defence, who was informed this week of the plan's existence, paused several seconds in startled silence.

"I can categorically assure you," he said finally, "that we have never had any plans to invade the U.S. Furthermore, I'm pretty sure we've never prepared for an attack from your side."

A U.S. army spokesman at the Pentagon was more evasive. "If an attack were ever to take place across the Canadian border," said the spokesman, "the army is prepared to defend the country."

What, he was asked, would the army do today in the event of a land attack from the north? "I can't tell you that," the spokesman replied. "It's classified."

According to Larsen, the mainstay of the 1919 battle plan was the movement of huge cannon mounted on railway flatcars up to the Canadian border, presumably to lob shells at the prairie.

To prepare for this portion of the plan a major general in the War Department wrote to the Canadians politely asking for their maps of the area. The Canadians sent back six copies with the notation by J. E. Chalifoux, Canada's chief geographer, that sadly the maps were somewhat out of date and they'd do better when they caught up.

A Corps of Engineers officer in Kansas City detailed to prepare rail routes to the border dutifully noted in his report that there was little need to prepare for squeezing the guns through any tunnels on the great plains because none existed.

The plan, Larsen said, never revealed who the army thought would be crossing over from Canada. Nevertheless, he said it appeared that the North Dakota-Montana section was just part of an over-all border defence contingency plan.

ing for warehouse space just in case the need grows. However, he's not interested in a six-month lease on anything. It would have to be on a day-by-day basis.

"I met for four hours Sunday with five key postal workers who will be organizing the service here. They are very eager to get started," Ferguson said.

"And the phone just keeps ringing today. Postmen want to earn a bit of money and that's fine with me."

The mail drop at the Ingraham is open Monday to Friday from 8 a.m. to 7 p.m. Deliveries across B.C. will be on a daily basis for stores, starting Tuesday, with deliveries to homes every four days, starting Friday. There will be no deliveries or mail drops on weekends.

3 U.S. CITIES BOMBED

By The Associated Press

A dozen bombs were set off at business and government buildings in New York, Washington and Chicago early today. A Puerto Rican separatist groups claimed responsibility for the bombings, which occurred a year and a day after five similar blasts for which the group was blamed.

The bombs went off almost simultaneously in the three cities at about 2 a.m. and caused only minor damage and no injuries. One of the blasts damaged first- and second-storey windows at Chicago's Sears Tower, the world's tallest building.

In Chicago, a man called a newspaper after the explosions and said two more bombs were set to go off "in honor of the veterans." Police found an unexploded bomb consisting of five sticks of dynamite in a bouquet of roses at the Standard Oil Building. They also were checking a suspicious box found in the Federal Reserve Bank.

In New York, Danny Mizeesko, 19, a security guard at a West Side branch of the First National Bank, heard one of the explosions and ran outside. He was standing 30 feet away when a bomb exploded in front of his own building.

Shortly after the first blasts, a woman called The Associated Press in New York to say that the FALN was responsible.

BCGEU Favors Master Contract

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Government Employees' Union, representing 35,000 workers, has voted 88 per cent in favor of accepting a master contract with the provincial government which provides cost-of-living pay increases, shorter working hours and other fringe benefit improvements.

John Fryer, the union's general secretary said in a news release Sunday that most clauses of the 22-month contract would be effective from last Oct. 1.

Fryer said a 35-hour work week takes effect next April for 20,000 of the union's members on shift work who were not covered by a 35-hour agreement in the 1974 contract.

The contract does not cover basic wage rates which are dealt with in separate bargaining talks beginning next month with the 13 union components.

The master contract also provides improvement in the union's dental, medical and life insurance plans; higher premiums for shift work and work in remote areas; and increases in allowances paid for board and lodging for field crews and for mileage and meals for employees travelling on government business.

Further details of the agreement were not available.

Controls Questions Remain

Labor Minister Bill King said today Ottawa still does not know how the wage controls will apply to labor negotiations.

"They still don't have those answers as yet," he said after returning from tallks with federal and provincial labor ministers in Ottawa.

"All of the provinces indicated to the federal government that it is absolutely essential that these questions be answered if we are to get the co-operation of trade unions.

"The federal government is not evading the issue," said King, "but simply does not know how the wage controls will apply to those unions which have just completed or are still in the process of negotiating new contracts."

King said he has no advice for unions because so many aspects of the controls are still to be worked out.

Asked if his disappointment meant he felt Ottawa rushed into the program, King said general plans had been in the making for a long time "but it does appear the details could have been better worked out."

As for B.C. pulp unions, federal finance minister Donald Macdonald indicated the pulp workers should be exempt from controls to maintain income equality within the forest industry but King said he does not know how that exemption will work.

Beirut Fighting Spreads

But street fighting here tends to taper off shortly after nightfall only to resume with renewed ferocity between midnight and dawn.

The new fighting in a neighborhood hitherto largely spared the destruction of earlier rounds of violence in the past seven months was apparently dictated by the left's desire to force the Phalange out of that part of modern residential and shopping Beirut.

The large area to the west — including key Western embassies and foreigners' golden ghettoes as well as the fashionable Hamra shopping district — constitute what is usually conceded as tacit Moslem territory if only because the Phalange has never shown much muscle there.

Lisbon Battle Flares

LISBON (AP) — Troops broke up a battle in which dozens were injured early today after Communists seized the governor's mansion in the southern Portuguese town of Faro.

RCMP DENIES TERRORISM MOVE

TORONTO (CP) — The RCMP denied Sunday that it is investigating an alleged plot by some Arab Canadians to foster terrorism at the Olympic Games in Montreal next summer.

Maurice Nadon, commissioner of the RCMP, said Sunday he had heard nothing about the plot, adding he would know if the RCMP were making such an investigation.

James Peters, president of the Canadian Arab Friendship Society, said today that a published report about such a plot is nonsense.

The Globe and Mail says in a copyright story that the plot and the identities of the conspirators are known to the RCMP but there is insufficient evidence to lay criminal charges.

The disturbance off the B.C. coast is continuing to move slowly northward and is weakening gradually. Precipitation associated with this system has become showery mainly over the south coast except for snowflurries at higher levels in the mountains. Over inland regions precipitation in the form of snowflurries is reported except for occasional rain or wet snow over the extreme southern interior.

This weather pattern over B.C. will slowly improve as the disturbance off the coast gradually weakens today and Tuesday.

Blasts But No Culprit Found

Reports of shotgun blasts near Panama Flats in Saanich Saturday night sent police out looking for the culprit, but without success.

A police spokesman said occasional complaints come from the area

"It's against the law to discharge a firearm in Saanich at any time," he said. "It's pretty dangerous to be shooting anywhere in a populated area."

But the residents are also concerned about their animals and believe ducks and Canada geese may have been the target.

"I've heard shotgun blasts myself in the Cuthbert Holmes Park area," said the spokesman. "Somebody's shooting at the ducks."

Police are not increasing patrols, however, because marksmen can see them coming long before investigators get near, he said.

Ransom Paid

COSENZA, Italy (AP)— Pasquale Leuzzi, wealthy owner of an olive oil factory who was kidnapped more than six weeks ago, was released Sunday after his family paid $320,000 ransom. Leuzzi, one of 47 kidnap victims this year in Italy, had been abducted by four masked men near his factory.

DODGING rain puddles, about 50 women, children and a few male supporters marched to the legislative buildings on Saturday to mark International Women's Day and protest lack of legislation on women's rights. Only two politicians were on hand to hear the marchers' protests — Liberal MLA David Anderson and Saanich mayoralty candidate Jim Maxwell.

KING OLAV IN ALASKA

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (UPI) — King Olav V of Norway arrived Sunday night for a 64-hour tour of Alaska, including a visit to the North Slope oil fields.

The king will be the first royal guest at the trans-Alaska pipeline project.

King Olav's tour included two banquets and a luncheon with Norwegians in Anchorage. Tuesday, the parka-clad Olav will fly to Prudhoe Bay for a meal of meat and potatoes with welders, drillers and oil pipeline workers on the $4.8 billion project.

ONE ESCAPER NABBED

Victoria police on Sunday nabbed one of two prisoners of the William Head medium security prison who walked away from a supervised bridge game Friday night.

Dennis Lilley, 30, is in custody in the Victoria police lockup and will appear in provincial court either later today or Tuesday charged with being unlawfully at large.

Police are still looking for William Turcotte, 25.

Both men, members of the prison's bridge club, were playing bridge with a community group at the Queen Victoria Inn Friday. At about 9:30 p.m. they apparently excused themselves from the room. Ten minutes later they were discovered missing.

On Sunday, Victoria police received a licence number of a car the men were seen travelling in, and detectives traced the owner to a house at 531 Williams in Vic West.

Shortly after 6 p.m. five officers went to the house and found Lilley inside. He submitted without struggle.

Victoria police Staff Sgt. Gordon Bennett said Turcotte had been in the house earlier in the day but was not there when police arrived.

Bennett said he believed Turcotte is still in the Victoria area.

Turcotte, whose criminal record includes one prior conviction for escape, was serving a four-year term for narcotics possession. He was due for release next June.

Lilley, who was serving a six-year sentence on a similar charge would have been released in March 1977.

Neither man was considered dangerous by police or prison staff.

Turcotte is described as five-foot nine inches tall, dark complexion and about 150 pounds. He was wearing blue sweater, blue pants and brown boots.

Currency Controlled

LISBON (AP) — Portugal announced Sunday a series of measures intended to stop the flight of capital from the country, including limiting to 1,000 escudos (about $37) the sum a resident may take on each trip abroad and prohibiting residents from taking cheques and credit cards out of Portugal.

City IWA Votes Tallied Tuesday

Results of a vote by 1,600 Victoria members of the International Woodworkers' of America on a tentative contract settlement will be counted Tuesday, a union spokesman said today.

All members were balloted during the weekend, except for one operation where members are voting today, the spokesman said.

Meanwhile, the two largest coast locals of the IWA have voted in favor of a tentative settlement with their forest employers.

Members of the Vancouver and New Westminster locals accepted the contract terms worked out Oct. 9 with the coast forest companies moments before Premier Dave Barrett introduced legislation which ordered four sectors of the economy, including the forest industry to resume operations.

A spokesman for the Vancouver local said the terms were approved by a substantial majority of members. Jerry Stoney of the New Westminster local refused to say how balloting went among that membership.

Loggers in other coast locations were still voting and results from all coastal IWA locals won't be available until Thursday.

The 35,000 coastal IWA members did not strike but most of them were off the job because of a strike by 13,000 pulp workers and poor market conditions.

Special mediator Mr. Justice Henry Hutcheon of the British Columbia Supreme Court had recommended that workers receive an increase of $1.55 an hour in a two-year contract. They eventually settled for $1.67.

The industry accepted the Hutcheon Report but coast members voted overwhelming acceptance.

The IWA had asked for an increase of $1 an hour plus an improved cost-of-living adjustment clause on a base rate of $5.10.

The industry had offered to extend the existing cost-of-living clause, which had risen to 24 cents an hour by the end of the last contract, for a year.

Bill Schumaker, president of the southern interior IWA said Saturday negotiations with the companies were at loggerheads after two days of talks. He said mediator Gus Leonidas sent both sides home Friday to think things over. No date has been set for resumption of talks.

Schumaker said his group is going after the same settlement as achieved by the coast IWA, but has held off final approval until the coast locals voted.

Acceptance of the agreement was a foregone conclusion for the Vancouver and New Westminster locals, Schumaker said.

Nanaimo Near-Riot Charges to Proceed

NANAIMO — Provincial court Judge Jack Caldwell denied Friday a defence lawyer's motion to quash charges of unlawful assembly laid against five men last summer.

His ruling was made after nearly two days of argument during which lawyer Donald Bohun contended the charges did not contain sufficient information concerning the words "unlawful assembly" and therefore should be quashed.

Bohun argued that it was necessary for the crown to detail in the charge the nature of the assembly and where and when it occurred.

Caldwell said there was sufficient information as outlined in the charge and ordered the charges to proceed to trial.

The five accused are allegedly part of a crowd of 79 people charged in connection with a near-riot in downtown Nanaimo last July 19 and 20 on the eve of the annual bathtub race.

Four of the five — Gordon, David Rees, Norman Attig and Charles Gallagher were in court when the trial date was set for Dec. 30. The fifth man, Rowanow Majesky did not appear and a bench warrant was issued for his arrest.

Bohun said later he intended to appeal Caldwell's ruling.

Foreign Ownership Blamed

BRAMPTON, Ont. (CP) — Foreign ownership in Canada is a large contributor to high inflation, regional unemployment, and the rapid depletion of non-renewable natural resources, says Mel Hurtig, former chairman of the Committee for an Independent Canada.

He told a committee gathering Friday night that the group influenced public opinion during the last 10 years, "but we failed miserably in stemming the tide of foreign ownership in Canada."

He said foreign ownership had doubled and "now we must work twice as hard."

Retired Printers Die

Funerals were held last week for two former Victoria Press Ltd. printers who worked most of their careers here and retired within two years of each other.

Laurance Johnston, 67, of 1595 Clive, died Oct. 23, the day following the funeral service for Fred Coldwell, 74, of 4030 Quadra, who died Oct. 18. Both were Victoria-born.

Each was apprenticed at the Colonist and Johnston spent his entire journeyman service at the Colonist or Victoria Press Ltd. until retirement in October, 1970.

Coldwell worked during the Second World War in California, but returned to Victoria to work at the Times and Colonist, from which he retired in August, 1968.

Martyred Magazines

The federal government's stupid—there's no other word for it but dumb, dumb, dumb—content regulations aimed at the Time and Reader's Digest Canadian editions have succeeded in doing what not even Henry Luce would have dared to attempt. The well-intentioned (?) but sloppily-executed move has elevated these two journals into something approaching martyrdom.

The Times has strongly supported legislative attempts to abolish the special tax privileges enjoyed by Time and Reader's Digest. For years, they have had an unfair advantage over not only Canadian periodicals unable to compete with the vast world resources of the magazines (Time circulation world-wide is over six million, the Digest's exceeds 18 million) but the tax breaks give them a considerable edge over other similar American magazines.

By no definition (other than that in the existing tax laws) could either magazine be considered Canadian. Time's founder himself told one Canadian government inquiry he did not consider it Canadian. The original decision to grant the two Canadian status for tax purposes was bad, but the manner in which Ottawa has chosen to break off the 10-year relationship is, if that is possible, worse.

If the Liberals had chosen merely to delete from the tax laws the exemption granted the two magazines, this newspaper would be unqualified in its praise. But Trudeau and company chose instead to impose a dangerous precedent with regulations setting exact percentages for ownership and content of any magazine wishing to qualify as Canadian for advertising tax deduction purposes.

Content must be 80 per cent "Canadian" and the magazines must be 75 per cent owned by Canadians. Who chose the numbers? Why 75 per cent and not 51 per cent? Why 80 per cent and not 100 per cent? No explanations have been offered.

Although it does not appear likely now, if Time and Reader's Digest decide to try to qualify for Canadian status, who will decide what constitutes Canadian content? Presumably it will be some anonymous committee of officials in national revenue and taxation department, or worse, the cabinet. What qualifications does either group have? Freedom of the press has come to a sorry watershed when civil servants or elected officials hold such a powerful whip hand over editors and publishers, whatever their nationality. If such laws affect only American magazines today, they can be extended to Canadian periodicals and newspapers tomorrow. Such arbitrary press controls, no matter how beneficial to Canadians in the short term, should be resisted mightily.

Recycling Old Bob

In the wake of the Trudeau administration's qualified wage and price controls Robert Lorne Stanfield is emerging as a forlorn sage. The Progressive Conservative leader resisted temptations to say "I told you so" when the Liberals appropriated a policy they sneered at only weeks ago. Now Stanfield is preparing to leave the national political stage because he has not led his party to power in three attempts. Like football coaches, political leaders are measured by their number of wins. Image is the only talisman in a country where style and dash substitute for substance.

Federal New Democratic Party leader Ed Broadbent touched on this in the commons last week when he expressed his personal admiration for Stanfield "... on the question of intellectual, moral and political integrity in the 1974 campaign." Such sentiment from an unlikely quarter raises the question of why Stanfield is leaving. Looking at the roster of aspiring Tory leadership candidates it would appear the party is pushing aside a proven man in another vain attempt to find the holy grail of power. The Conservatives have a penchant for leaping on bandwagons after the music has stopped.

At present the back room boys see the country moving to the right. The Conservative cowboys from the west mount up, guns loaded with free enterprise rhetoric understood only in Alberta. Their eastern echoes, notably Sinclair Stevens, are only slightly more sophisticated as they discuss "Liberal socialism" or "doctrinaire statism". What a sad lot of political misfits. They seem to want to drag the party farther into the wilderness where it has been since John Diefenbaker was exorcised.

The two most credible candidates to emerge so far, Flora MacDonald and a young Alberta MP, Joe Clarke lack national exposure and could have a difficult time winning among so many intent rednecks. That leaves the new messiah, Peter Lougheed. But Peter of the square jaw seems more concerned with making shrewd deals in European salons than seeking the federal Tory leadership. As an old football player he knows what can happen in a rough scrimmage.

Meanwhile, Stanfield, who suggested comprehensive controls when the Liberals thought inflation was a foreign disease, prepares to exit at centre stage. A look at stage right should make the party think twice about letting him go. He may look dull beside all the rhinestone cowboys, but Canadians have finally awakened to the fact that all that glitters isn't diamonds. Dull old Bob might just save his party from its own excesses, and in time, perhaps the country.

Promise Always Been There

OTTAWA — Trade Minister Don Jamieson has about him a palpable roundness, an evident bulk he now accepts but which much of his life he must have cursed. His education ended with a commercial diploma from Mercy Convent in St. John's. He was born below the hill, a climb almost impossible to make in the class-ridden Newfoundland in which Jamieson grew up.

Burdens like these would have crushed many men. No cabinet colleague has gone further with less going for him. But Jamieson also has talents that some men could have carried a great deal further.

An effortless eloquence. Newfoundland is the last place left where rhetoric is a household sport. Jamieson's only superior is ex-premier Joey Smallwood. His first time out as trade minister, Jamieson told the Canadian Manufacturer's Association in Toronto: "Stop blaming all your troubles on labor ... What are your specific problems? What are your proposals? Don't give me whining generalities ... My responsibility is to remove roadblocks for you. And I'll take all the credit I can." The response was a standing ovation.

Quick Analysis

A quickness, not just of wit but of analysis. Postmater-General Eric Kierans once asked Jamieson when he should implement a postal rate increase. "Christmas. The public will be up to its ass in jingle-bells and won't notice." Kierans followed the advice. All went well — then worked for him — until the postmen went on strike, to start a new tradition.

Political candor that only ex-finance minister John Turner can exceed. The Conservatives once rated Turner and Jamieson as the least-productive ministers to attack. Either could effortlessly turn wrath into a smile or transform a political barb into a boomerang.

An incomparable potential that, somehow, has not been translated into a comparable performance. Jamieson has done well in his three portfolios, supply and services, transport (keeping it out of the political mess into which his successor, Jean Marchand, put it), regional economic expansion (taking it out of the political mess in which Marchand left it). At none of then, though, has he left any lasting mark.

Suddenly, promise and achievement may be one and the same. Six weeks ago, Jamieson was bored, lethargic, uninvolved. His principal interest was how to retire in time — he's 54 — to start a second career. Today, to describe Jamieson as happy is to debase the word. By comparison, a clam at high tide is morose and a cat with a canary inside it is aggrieved.

DONALD JAMIESON

The cause — a fortuitous by-product of Turner's departure — is Jamieson's promotion to trade. It's the portfolio he wanted — "a huge, big challenge" — and the job to which all his talents bend.

Trade is the job of a salesman. To merchandise the wage and price controls program, Jamieson will hit the road harder than any minister except Trudeau and Finance Minister Macdonald. Yesterday, St. John's and the Atlantic provinces economic council; today, Halifax and the board of trade. Next week, a broadcasters' association in Toronto and business groups in Vancouver and Calgary.

Trade is also a job for a businessman. Jamieson's background is unique. He made his own way in the marketplace, from the bottom up. He started as a bellhop in the Newfoundland Hotel, using cheeky jokes to earn 50 cent tips from prohibition smugglers out of St. Pierre and finished as the millionaire co-owner, with broadcasting magnate Geoff Stirling, of a radio and television empire.

Job Profile

Add those requirements together and you've got a job profile that could fit someone like Conservative ex-trade minister George Hees. Which is the point. Far more is involved. Beyond immediate decisions such as application of the second phase of the Foreign Investment Review Act and restructuring of the entire aircraft industry lies the central issue — a $7-billion trade deficit, by far the largest ever, with worse to come as Canadian goods are priced out of world markets.

Because so skilled a politician and so thoroughly attractive a person, Jamieson in the past has always been able to muffle his moments of truth and get away with it. At transport, he let Pickering airport roll on. At regional economic expansion he quickly analyzed the central problem — the department lacks the authority to do more than throw money at industries so that in fact 70 per cent of the gains in per capita incomes in the poor provinces has come not from development policies but from increased transfer payment — but never pushed his ideas at cabinet.

It's certain Jamieson will do as well as Hees once did. The real question is whether he may come respecteably close to the late C. D. Howe. He just might. For a start, Jamieson is a better talker, a better politician, and far, far, funnier than Howe.

Controls: Two Severe Problems

OTTAWA — Some of the government's most senior officials realize now that the cabinet is in serious difficulty with its new economic program of price and income controls.

The fundamental cause of the difficulty is simple — it is common ground among all proponents of such controls that they require widespread public support if they are to work well. Support from the people must be massive in the beginning because it will start to erode from the day that controls are announced.

Trudeau and his ministers made two extremely serious mistakes. They made no attempt to build up the high level of initial support they required. Indeed, through their last election campaign and a host of intervening statements, they in fact did their utmost to prevent development of massive support for controls.

Lacking this initial advantage, they then announced the application of controls effective from Thanksgiving Day and began to improvise the system. Apparently fear of losing face kept them from starting with the freeze on prices and incomes that would have given them time to hammer some sort of structure into place. Robert Stanfield had fought the 1974 election campaign on that issue.

Openly Improvising

The result is that while they are attempting to impose a control system they are simultaneously trying to construct the system. The result is that they are openly improvising.

Thus the prime minister is trying to sell a system for which there is inadequate initial support and at the same time is jumping to ad hoc arguments and proposals. The most glaring example of this is the ill-considered threat he used in Winnipeg to tax away any excessive income increases.

One of the most glibly attractive schemes ever thought of for dealing with inflation is the proposal that excessive increases in incomes should simply be taxed away through the imposition of the theory of excess profits taxes to incomes. If that would work, incomes would never need to be an inflationary problem again.

Because the idea has such appeal, the department of finance took a hard look at it last spring, hoping that it could be made to work. A small group of officials working under one of the assistant deputy ministers, M. A. Cohen, spent a fortnight or so seeking ways to apply the idea.

In the end, they concluded that for all its appeal it is just a mirage — the administrative problems involved in actually imposing an excess incomes tax would be so horrendous that the idea is unworkable. Reluctantly, they abandoned the idea. Later on, apparently, the department had a second look at the idea and again concluded that it simply cannot be made to work.

On Tuesday evening last week in Winnipeg, however, the prime minister shoved the idea forward as a combination threat and promise of government action. Referring to the post office workers, he declared:

"We'll just tax it out of your pockets afterwards so there's not much point to strike."

The officials of the department of finance learned that the idea was back in circulation when they picked up their copies of The Globe and Mail and read about it Wednesday morning. That is the sort of improvising that does nothing in the end to sell such far-reaching programs as the government's price and income controls.

It is extremely unlikely, in any case, that such a program can be sold through hectoring or threats. It just might be put across by a first-class effort at persuasion. If that is ever to happen, though, men in positions of great authority are going to have to come down to earth and tell labor something as simple as this — the end objective of the whole program is to stop the constant erosion of wages so that when a working man gets a reasonable wage increase he gets a benefit from it and does not see its value disappear through higher prices long before his contract is over. That is just another way of saying that the government is seeking to protect the value of money.

As matters stand, the array of labor organizations opposing the government's program is becoming dangerously large and it would be rash to imagine that their stand will be ineffective. Anyone who believes that should think back to Edward Heath's battle with the British coal miners over inflationary pay increases.

Much of the problem is that at this time many people are afraid. Anyone who listens to open line or interview shows on the air can pick this up with ease. It is obvious in most of the statements that come from labor. Some of it is evident in business and investment circles.

The most widespread fear is that the government will effectively control incomes but will be ineffective in curbing rapid price increases. So far, Trudeau and his colleagues have been unable to dispel this worry. The prime minister will find before he is through that you cannot threaten people into giving up their fears and replacing them with confidence in government.

In the white paper and the subsequent statements, there is a far clearer government position on profits than on prices. That is the wrong order of priorities. The time will come when public men will need the courage to recognize openly that our economic system does not work without profits. That is a fundamental point upon which Liberal leaders cannot forever pander to New Democratic Party opponents and their special constituency. The return on investment in this country must be at least as good as in the United States or we will have to have foreign exchange controls to prevent an exodus of capital.

Sacred Programs

In any case, an announcement that the government will prevent increases in dividends — for instance those paid by food chains — does nothing at all to reassure the housewife who must go out and buy food. It tells her nothing about prices and if the family income is to be restricted that is what concerns her most.

There has been far too little emphasis in all of this on real restraints in government spending and far too much emphasis on how difficult it is to cut back the rate at which governments spend money. The current attitude is that growth in personnel may be curbed but government programs are sacred. Of course they are not and government spending will never really be curbed until that attitude changes.

Timid Politicians

Reading the newspapers and listening to the radio on the subject of inflation and the methods proposed to control it, one is struck by the confusion of thought between the results of inflation and the cause of inflation.

Thoughout the discussion little attempt has been made to clarify this confusion of thought. The government concentrates on the results of inflation — high wage demands and high unemployment — with no mention of the cause of inflation, which is huge budget deficits caused by gross overspending by the Liberal government. This causes the money supply to be greatly increased, money which is purely inflationary because it is not the result of greater production.

MP Herb Gray, is the only well known Liberal to put his finger on the real cause of inflation.

Why does the Liberal government, which well knows the real cause of inflation, refuse to face up to this issue? They know that to reduce budget deficits, which despite their figure juggling is still rising, will mean forcing down the standard of living. This they think would make them so unpopular as to lose them the next election.

Opinion polls show that the people are ready to accept a lower standard of living if this will reduce inflation. The timid politicians leading from behind should recognize this fact and come clean on the real cause of inflation or they will lose the next election.—H. S. Thuillier, 2424 Beach Drive.

It Needs Teeth

Ottawa has loosed an inflation-fighting lion in the streets. A brave gesture, but the bark is worse than the bite. The inflation-wrestling growler lacks teeth.

Is the federal government afraid to stomp a paw in the ivory towers of high finance? Is it afraid to knock down out-of-hand mortgage, bank and finance company sky-high interest rates? When a government backs off from the whip-crackers of monetary manipulation, it becomes suspect.

Suspicion of losing possible campaign contributions is why it backs off from snapping with a full set of sharp teeth in the jungle where the money is thicker and greener. Certain business-killing taxes should be removed. Certain monopolists of basic commodities should be told to "shape up or ship out."

If Ottawa is afraid to include one and all in the fight to tame the chaotic economy, then its inflation-fighting lion best be lured to the nearest taxidermist and the government can go back to sleep on the resultant rug.—Ernie R. Smith, 3968 Bear Street.

LONDON — A long account by an eyewitness of atrocities by the Turks against the Armenians has been telegraphed by the Reuter corrspondent with the allied fleet at the Dardanelles. It comes from an official source, an Armenian serving in the Turkish army who was taken prisoner by the British. He said the bishop of Sivas wore shoes of red hot iron by a village blacksmith at the order of the Turks, that men of Tokat were taken together in groups of four and taken out one at a time to the marshy districts and shot, that women were tied to ox-carts and exposed to hunger and rough weather until they either died or accepted conversion to Islam.

Cuba Missile Crisis: Was It Really Necessary?

Is there a plan to brief and brainwash the key press within 12 hours or so—N.Y. Times—Lippmann — Childs — Alsop — key bureau
—White House memo, Oct. 22, 1962

By BARTON J. BERNSTEIN

(Bernstein is a history professor at Stanford University. He wrote this article for The Washington Post.)

Thirteen years ago, during the week of Oct. 22-28, 1962, the two great powers stood at the abyss of nuclear war. It was a fearsome week, opening with President Kennedy's declaration on Monday evening, Oct. 22, that there were Soviet "offensive" missiles in Cuba and that they must be withdrawn, and closing with the Soviet promise on Sunday morning to accede to the American demand. It was, a time, as Premier Nikita Khrushchev later said, when "the smell of burning hung in the air."

It was a week when the administration skillfully managed an often trusting, usually uncritical press and found the nation eager to rally around the president and the flag. Few Americans then challenged the need for Kennedy's action, lamented his decision to eschew personal negotiations with Khrushchev before making the crisis public, or questioned whether the missiles constituted (as Kennedy suggested) an imminent military threat to the United States.

Since that October, amid the flurry of memoirs, many analysts have addressed the events of that week, but most critical issues remain in dispute: Were the missiles in Cuba an imminent military threat that changed the military balance of power? If not, why, according to Kennedy and his advisers, did the Soviet Union put the missiles in Cuba? If they were not an imminent threat and did not alter the military balance, why did Kennedy move toward a public confrontation without first trying private negotiations with Russia? What was the role of domestic and international political considerations in shaping his tactics? Why did Kennedy reject a summit conference at that time? And on Oct. 27, when the only issue blocking a settlement was American agreement to withdraw our missiles from Turkey, why did the administration refuse these terms and risk prolonging the crisis and moving toward nuclear war?

Five days before Kennedy's speech, on Oct. 17, his counsel, Theodore Sorensen, informed the president of his advisers' conclusion that "these missiles, even when fully operational, do not significantly alter the balance of (military) power." The missiles, Sorensen went on, "do not significantly increase the potential megatonnage capable of being unleashed (against) American soil, even after a surprise nuclear attack."

Most members of the ExComm (Executive Committee of the National Security Council) agreed that the addition of missiles in Cuba, though outflanking America's radar warning system, did not add to the likelihood of a Soviet first strike, reduce the impact of an American first strike, or add significantly to the Soviet retaliatory capacity (after an American first strike). As Robert McNamara, the secretary of defence, then argued in the ExComm, "a missile is a missile. It makes no great difference whether you are killed by a missile fired from the Soviet Union or from Cuba."

Roswell Gilpatric, the deputy secretary of defence, later agreed that "the military equation was not altered" by the introduction of missiles in Cuba. "It was simply an element of flexibility introduced into the power equation that the Soviets had not heretofore possessed."

Khrushchev and Kennedy in Vienna . . . bitter memories

Why, according to the administration, did the Soviets put the missiles in Cuba? Most ExComm members concluded that the Soviets were testing America's courage and commitments, her will and credibility. The missiles, they maintained, were not a military but a political threat. How, asked Sorensen, in summarizing ExComm discussions for Kennedy, can either America's allies or adversaries trust "our courage and commitment . . . if we tolerate the known presence of offensive nuclear weapons" in Cuba? "Retorts from either our European allies," Sorensen continued, "or the Soviets that we can become as accustomed as they to accepting the nearby presence of (missiles have) some logic but little weight . . ."

For most advisers, this "courage and commitment" thesis explained Soviet behavior and determined the need for the administration to take action to remove the missiles. But why the need for a public confrontation first? In the ExComm, Charles Bohlen, a career diplomat and Soviet expert, argued for private negotiations first. On Oct. 17, he proposed that Kennedy first communicate with Khrushchev privately and then decide, after the premier's response, whether a blockade or air strike was necessary. Llewellyn Thompson, another Soviet expert, as well as a number of advocates of blockade, favored this course.

Why did the president and most of his advisers reject private negotiations first? Over the years, some participants and analysts have usually stressed two reasons: that Kennedy feared losing time and letting the missiles become operational during negotiations, for that would weaken his position; and that he feared losing the initiative once he let Khrushchev know that the United States was aware of the missiles.

The "operational missile" theory is incorrect, for it assumes, wrongly, that most of the missiles were not operational by Oct. 22. That is what the administration told the press and the American people during the week. But that was deceitful. A recently declassified CIA report of Oct. 23 indicates that of the six medium-range (MRBM) sites, four were "fully operational" and two had "emergency capability."

The "initiative" thesis is troubling and quite suspect. First, contrary to some published assumptions, intelligence reports at the time estimated that Khrushchev believed that Kennedy did know of the presence of missiles in Cuba. Second, administration members presumably recognized that any loss of American initiative would be quite temporary, and that the United States, with its great nuclear superiority, could regain the initiative quickly. Private negotiations, in turn, had the advantage of giving Khrushchev the time to respond without his being frozen into a public position and facing a stark choice: Military confrontation or retreat and humiliation.

There are other likely reasons why Kennedy eschewed private negotiations and moved directly to a public confrontation. None who reads the memoirs and archival sources on Kennedy's prior 21 months in office, especially after his unpleasant meeting with Khrushchev in Vienna and the Bay of Pigs debacle, can easily deny that the president felt beleaguered: he had lost prestige and feared that his courage and commitment were doubted at home and abroad. A public confrontation and triumph would allow him dramatically to recoup these losses and would persuade various constituencies — citizens at home, allies abroad and the Soviets — of his decisiveness.

There was another reason why Kennedy moved so speedily to public confrontation without first trying private negotiations. He feared that news of the missiles would leak out at home, that citizens might panic, that bureaucrats and politicians, already pilorying him for what the GOP called "the tragic policy of irresolution" in dealing with Cuba, would block his program in Congress and possibly force a harder line in foreign policy.

With the congressional elections scheduled for early November, and with major newspapers already piecing together the story of missiles in Cuba, he could not risk the delay of private negotiations. As Treasury Secretary C. Douglas Dillon, a Republican, remarked during a meeting of the ExComm: "Have you considered the very real possibility that if we (do not remove the missiles promptly), the next House of Representatives is likely to have a Republican majority? This would completely paralyze our ability to react sensibly and coherently to further Soviet advances."

Kennedy and his advisers were not acting primarily to protect narrow partisan interests, though he could not be totally indifferent to such concerns, but out of the larger sense that an electoral defeat in November would impair their capacity to advance the national interest. For them, this was the reasoning not of narrow partisans but of patriots.

Throughout the week of crisis, President Kennedy steadfastly demanded that the Soviets withdraw the missiles. This was not a negotiable demand. Nor would he risk delay by agreeing to a summit conference then. Newly declassified materials reveal that some advisers were proposing a summit in order to ease tension, reduce the possibility of nuclear war and perhaps produce "a turnaround of some significance of Soviet policy." Khrushchev was then at the "crossroads in policy, the Cuba MRBM deployment represents his attempt to explore the hard fork," and according to an unidentified adviser, a summit might "tempt (the Premier) to explore the alternative (form)." The results might include agreements on nuclear-free zones in Latin America and Africa, the cooling of tensions on Germany and the relaxation of NATO-Warsaw Pact problems.

On Saturday, Oct. 27, when the Soviet Union offered formally to withdraw her missiles in Cuba in return for an American no-invasion pledge and removal of Jupiter missiles from Turkey, why didn't the administration yield explicitly on the missiles in Turkey? Well before the October crisis, Kennedy had urged their removal, because they were obsolete, vulnerable and provocative. And on Sunday, Oct. 21, Kennedy had scrawled in a note (recently declassified) that Douglas Dillon "stated that the . . . Jupiters were sent (to Turkey) because they were flops, and this would have been proved if they had (been used)." They were, in short placebos for the Turks.

But to the Soviets the Jupiters were a threat to security and to prestige. On Oct. 22, five days before the Soviets suggested the trade, W. Averell Harriman, former ambassador to Moscow, advised the president, according to a recently declassified document, that "there had been great pressure on Khrushchev for a considerable time to do something about our ring of bases, aggravated by our placing Jupiter missiles in Turkey." Harriman's unstated implication was that removal of the missiles might lead to Khrushchev's withdrawal of the missiles from Cuba.

At the ExComm meeting on Saturday, Oct. 27, after the Soviets demanded removal of the Turkey missiles as part of a quid pro quo, some advisers proposed, and even drafted a message about a zany plot, now revealed in recently declassified papers: The United States would disarm its missiles in Turkey and secretly inform the Soviet Union "prior to moving against the Soviet missiles in Cuba" — First by air strike and then invasion. Fortunately, this scheme failed to gain much support.

Rejecting this scheme, the administration agreed to the Soviet request for a public no-invasion pledge but refused to accede formally to the additional Soviet condition — withdrawal of U.S. missiles from Turkey. "We all agreed . . . that if the Russians were ready to go to nuclear war over Cuba, they were ready to go to nuclear war, and that was that," Robert Kennedy later explained. "So we might as well have the showdown then as six months later."

But privately, Attorney-General Kennedy suggested to Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin that if NATO approved, the Unites States would later remove the missiles in Turkey. Would this guarded, hedged, private offer suffice? It did not meet the Soviet terms. The Kennedy brothers were not optimistic.

"It can go either way," President Kennedy said privately. War and peace hung in the balance. The president had not abandoned hope, Robert Kennedy later wrote, but it "was a hope, not an expectation." John F. Kennedy, his brother explained, "obviously did not wish to order the withdrawal of missiles from Turkey under threat from the Soviet Union."

Fortunately, the Soviet Union decided to back down before superior American nuclear forces and Khrushchev accepted the public humiliation. For many observers, then and now, it was a great victory for the United States and Kennedy. Yet the events of that week still raise painful questions: Was the crisis necessary? Was the risk of nuclear war a reasonable price for seeking to remove the missiles through a public confrontation? Should not other tactics — private negotiations — have been tried first? Was Kennedy's rejection of a summit unwise? Was his refusal to formally trade the Turkish missiles too risky? What would have happened if the Soviet Union, 13 years ago, had proved intransigent and refused to back down, and had chosen war rather than humiliation?

Internal Affairs Preoccupy China

By JOHN GITTINGS
Manchester Guardian

At a time when the continents of the world seem to jostle for news space, the Chinese, representing more than a quarter of the earth's population, are strangely out of it. Instead, they continue to be intensely preoccupied with the problems which arise in the course of building socialism — problems which in the capitalist west are hard to understand and which Peking makes no great effort to explain to us.

Chinese foreign policy seems to have "jelled" in its firm anti-superpower (more particularly anti-Soviet) posture.

President Ford and Dr. Kissinger are still supposed to return to Peking next month (the president previously visited China with a congressional delegation in 1972). But all the really big gains in Chinese diplomacy such as ending the trade embargo and entering the United Nations, have long ago been made.

A more fruitful way to look at China is to reflect that next month it will be 10 years since the Cultural Revolution began. A whole decade, with all its upheavals, nevertheless setting a fundemental new course for Chinese society and especially for the younger generation.

The first Red Guards have now reached the recommended marrying age (25 for women, 28 for men). The young rebel workers have become skilled at their trades. And the 60-year-olds who led the revolution are now in their 70s and indisputably a vanishing generation.

The basic changes at work in Chinese society can be seen in this year's campaign "to study Socialist theory" and "to restrict bourgeois rights," although, like all processes of social transformation the results can be confusing.

Chinese press and radio reports, especially from the central province of Chekiang, have confirmed the Hong Kong reports of recent industrial unrest. The railway system, which suffered last year, was again affected. Troops have been sent to several provinces "to support industrial production," on much the same way as was done immediately after the Cultural Revolution. The purpose seems generally to set an example of hard work and self-sacrifice, not to impose martial law on the workers, but the sanction of force is necessarily implied.

The roots of the industrial unrest lie in the greater articulacy of the Chinese worker, gained during the revolution and stimulated by heavy-handed attempts to reimpose trade union and bureaucratic control. (A number of wall posters in Peking last year complained of efforts to muzzle the workers' representatives on the revolutionary committees).

In January this year the new state constitution gave to the Chinese worker the "right to strike," and party leaders acknowledged that workers' control was often still a myth in the state-owned industries. Soon after queries were raised, with Mao's authority behind them, about the fairly large differentials still existing in the industrial wage-scale — one of the "bourgeois rights" which survives.

It would be too simple to say that the workers this summer in Chekiang and other places were protesting either for or against the abolition of bonuses and the narrowing of wage differentials.

The positions adopted must depend partly on self-interest, partly on the level of political consciousness, and the Chinese press has given no details. But the key feature, which could not be imagined before the Cultural Revolution, is the willingness of many rank-and-file workers to stand up and speak.

In the countryside the situation is, to use a favourite Chinese adjective, even more "complex" with continued concern over the persistence of "the capitalist mentality of the small peasant producer." Recently the party journal, Red Flag, gave a revealing picture of rural malpractice:

Some communes, Red Flag comments, ignored state requirements and planted cash crops instead of grain; others bypassed the state purchasing agencies and sold on the free market (which is limited in theory to small commodities produced by the peasants to supplement their collective income).

In some communes the system of work-points helped to widen instead of narrow the income gap. The actions, concluded the journal "not only corrupt the minds of cadres and commune members, but also lead to speculaton, corruption, and theft."

Such complaints have been voiced before. What is new is the recognition that the fault lies not with the shadowy "class enemies," ghosts of the rotten past, but with the contradictions arising today within the Socialist system in its incomplete and transitional form.

One important conclusion is that socialism needs the means to make it with. Last month, a national conference on agriculture, convened at the model village of Tachai in Shansi province, called for farm mechanisation to be "completed in the main by 1980."

Again, we have no idea what this involves in terms of targets and investment, but the commitment, endorsed by Chiang Ching (Mao's wife) and Teng Hsiao-ping (Chou En-lai's deputy) is a significant one. It means that the Chinese peasant is not expected to build socialism exclusively with his bare hands — which has sometimes seemed to be the view of the most radical Chinese leaders.

Any attempt to understand the Chinese road to socialism is unfortunately hampered by our lack of information. Important documents like Mao' writings on economic policy are studied all over China but are not officially available abroad. The Chinese readily admit they have problems, but very much dislike it when other people inquire further.

Within China there is also a disquieting lack of comparison with other socialist Systems. The very different experiences of, say, Cuba, Yugoslavia, and Tanzania, are never discussed in the Chinese press. Only a dogmatised version of the Soviet "negative experience" is offered.

The Chinese road remains fascinating, although frustrating to study from outside. In another 10 years we should all see whether it still leads in the intended direction — the question which Chairman Mao has said is "still undecided."

Blues Minstrel Road Wore Lightnin' Down

By GEORGE OAKE
Times Staff

Sam Lightnin' Hopkins is the last of a long line of blues minstrels who have scratched out a living playing on street corners and singing for little record companies.

Their art is real enough. The rich guitar chords hang in the air like a humid fog in the East Texas Piney woods—where Hopkins has practiced his art for more than 30 years.

Came the folk boom of the late fifties and the blues singers were rediscovered. Hopkins has been on the road ever since. Sunday night he made it to Victoria. The long road must have been wearing because the results in the McPherson theatre were disappointing.

In between all that hard travelling Hopkins has acquired a drummer and an electric bass. Lightnin himself, favors a bright red electrical instrument rather than his old acoustic guitar.

The fingers are sure and the voice is strong, but the songs have been homogenized for young white audience's who weren't even a gleam in their parent's eyes when Hopkins was doing time on the Leon County chain gang.

Mighty Crazy, a subtle metaphorical comment on sexual and social matters, becomes a simple rock and roll song now, with Hopkins beating out a rhythm on his guitar frets. It's as if he's tired and want's to go home.

The boys in Houston's Third Ward, down on Dowling Street, where Hopkins used to play wouldn't recognize that red electric machine. It is sad to see a man become a parody of himself—the same thing happened to Louis Armstrong in his declining years.

To charge up to $5 for less than an hour's entertainment from Hopkin's is also rankling. The promoters of these events could be a little less cynical too.

As for Hopkins his art and strength are intact. So why wrap it up in electronics and red plastic? It would seem the Trouble Blues are everywhere.

Bids Asked On Bricklin

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP) — Assest of Bricklin Canada Ltd. were put up for sale by tender today by one of the auto company's secured creditors.

An advertisement in The Telegraph-Journal says Canada Permanent Trust, acting on behalf of the First Pennsylvania Bank, will receive tenders up to Nov. 14 "for the purchase of all or any part of the inventory of Bricklin Canada Ltd."

Donald Crosby, senior trust officer with Canada Permanent, said the sale was ordered by the bank Thursday or Friday.

POLICE SHUDDER AT PDT'S END

Victoria traffic police don't like the end of daylight time — it brings more evening accidents.

They warn drivers to take extra caution travelling home from work since the clock change means early darkness.

"People just come out of work one day and it's dark," said Inspector J. L. Smith. "It sneaks up on people."

"Our statistics show an increase in accidents right away when we change from daylight saving to standard."

He said elderly citizens are often still shopping and on the streets at the time, and children are headed home.

"Take a little more care, make sure your windshield wipers work, and don't forget to buckle up," said Smith.

Oregon Group Had Its Chops Down Throughout

By HOI-YIN DER
Times Staff

Familiarization with the current jazz world and its jargon were, so I was told, the two prerequisites in reviewing the American jazz ensemble Oregon.

In the course of my hasty study Sunday afternoon, I learned that jazz had moved a long way from the ragtime, blues and swing periods to an era of atonal music where the tyranny of the bar line has been overcome by multiple changes of time signatures and use of such meters as 9-8 or 5-4; I learned that there is a battle between the "electric" school and the "acoustic" school and I discovered that in current jazz jargon an instrument is an "axe", a good musician is described as "having his chops down" and good performance is "hot" and a "really hot" performance is a "bitch".

In current terms, Oregon's performance at Harpos Cabaret in Bastion Square Sunday evening could be described as a bitch. The axes were well-balanced and the four-man group had its chops down throughout, providing an entertaining evening to a full house.

The acoustic ensemble — with Ralph Towner on the classical and 12-string guitar and piano; Glen Moore, string bass and violin; Paul McCandless, oboe and Collin Walcott, sitar, tabla and maracas — played two sets of their own compositions.

The influence of the east and of latin America dominated each of the pieces performed and in the dimly-lit, tunky New Orleans atmosphere of Harpos, one was lifted out of the cold Victoria dampness into a warm occult of deep floor cushions, east Indian tapestries and hash pipes.

In Ralph Towners improvisational piece Dark Spirit, Walcotts performance on the sitar was of a haunting, mystical quality. The ensemble was balanced and provided a solid foundation for the light, ethereal sitar solo with its several mode changes. The performance left one with a feeling of tranquility and peace with nature and with oneself.

On a different plane, Saint Philomene by Paul McClandless was a restless, urgent piece. It offered more of a latin flavor with the use of a syncopated bass line and maracas. Towner gave an exciting guitar performance, displaying excellent finger work. Glen Moore showed good command of the string bass in his solo section which introduced a more restful mood. The agitation again began with McClandless's oboe solo. His performance was the strongest of the group.

Herrema's Health Causing Concern

MONASTEREVIN, Ireland (AP) — The police are concerned about the health of kidnapped Dutch businessman Tiede Herrema, abducted Oct. 3 by two Irish terrorists and besieged with them for a week in the second-floor bedroom of a small row house.

Medical experts monitoring electronic surveillance equipment said the 53-year-old captive was breathing with difficulty and coughing heavily. Herema had a bad cold when he was kidnapped on his way to work in Limerick.

There was concern also for the health of the victim's wife. She was reported suffering from persistent nausea and unable to take solid food.

More than 300 heavily-armed army troops and police maintained a siege around the house where Herrema and his armed abductors were found last Tuesday.

Kidnappers Eddie Gallagher, 28, and Marian Coyle, 19, made no reply to a public appeal for Herrema's release by Rory O'Brady, the head of Sinn Fein, the Irish Republican Army's political wing.

O'Brady told 1,000 delegates to Sinn Fein's annual meeting in Dublin that the kidnapping "serves no useful purpose."

"We call on those responsible to release him," he said. "We must show the people that we are good enough for them to entrust their future to us."

O'Brady denied that the IRA Provisonals were responsible for the kidnapping and said the republican movement, which seeks to unite Northern Ireland with the Irish republic, has done all it can to secure Herrema's release.

The one concession won by the kidnappers was lost today when the factory Herrema manages reopened. A spokesman said the Ferenka steel works lost at least $750,000 and would have to close permanently unless its 1,200 workers resumed production.

Store Cheating–Writers

OTTAWA (CP) — Almost 50 Canadian writers, including Pierre Berton, Margaret Lawrence and W. O. Mitchell, picketed in front of a downtown Coles bookstre Saturday, saying the company is cheating them out of their royalties.

The writers says Coles has been importing U.S. editions of their books and has been selling them at cut-rate prices in direct competition with Canadian editions. Coles Books Stores Ltd. has 70 stores in Ontario and Western Canada.

Pierre Berton said in an interview that the store was selling a condensed version of his two-volume work on the building of the CPR. But neither he nor his Canadian publisher was getting any royalties from sales of the American edition in Canada.

The store manager said later Coles sells Canadian as well as American versions of books by Canadian authors.

The hard-cover Canadian editions of the Last Spike and the Nation Dreo mby Pierre Berton sell for 12 each, he said. The American edition, a one-volume abridgement of the two books, sells for $7.95 in a hard-cover edition.

Fraud Alleged In Mirabel Jobs

MONTREAL (CP) — Investigations are under way into allegations of fraud and tax evasion involving millions of dollars in contracts for Mirabel international airport, spokesmen for the RCMP and federal government said Sunday.

Speaking during the CTV's public affairs program W5, the spokesman said investigators are "evaluating information" on several contracts issued for the project but would not elaborate on which companies were involved or possible charges.

However, the program outlined a history of rising "consultant fees" involved in the airport project, citing as one example an $11-million increase in fees charged by a consulting consortium.

The consortium's fee, originally set at $12 million, had risen to $23 million by the time the airport's opening ceremonies were held earlier this month, the program said.

Total consulting fees paid to various groups involved in the project amounted to $40 million for the first phase alone, it added.

The program said the airport's original budget of $215 million may be exceeded by as much as $100 million.

RCMP spokesman said investigations deal with a $60-million construction segment of the project.

POT RAID, 12 HELD

SEATTLE (AP) — Marijuana seized in a raid at a Black Diamond farm Thursday was part of a nine-ton shipment from Mexico that was unloaded at a nearby Ballard Dock, authorities say.

The U.S. attorney's office said that 4½ tons of the shipment were seized in the raid, and so far, 12 persons have been formally charged with involvement in the marijuana smuggling.

The whereabouts of the other 4½ tons remained a secret.

Those charged include Scott A. Woods, 28, of Seattle, who was accused of being the captain of the fishing boat that transported the marijuana from Mexico.

'Peg Crowds Flock To Space Exhibit

WINNIPEG (CP) — Large crowds flocked to the Winnipeg Convention Centre on the weekend for the opening of what is billed as the biggest Soviet space exhibit ever shown outside the U.S.S.R.

The exhibit of models includes Sputnik-1, which went into space in 1957; Lunar-9, the first space craft to make a soft landing on the Moon; and Venera 4, part of a program focussing on Venus.

The displays left Leningrad by ship in mid-August and arrived a week ago at the convention centre, where they are supervised by a party of Soviet space representatives. The show runs to Nov. 12.

The models, some full-sized and some half-sized, are authentic in all details. The exhibit includes some things that are not models — such as food that cosmonauts would eat and some space engines.

The director of the exhibit, Edward Bakhrakh, said a space exhibition is held outside the U.S.S.R. about once a year. The current show resulted from an invitation by Winnipeg Mayor Stephen Juba.

Almost all the exhibits have been displayed previously, but an operational scale model of the Soviet launch site at Baikanur is being shown to the public for the first time.

Soviet space representatives said Venera 9, which landed last Wednesday on Venus and incidentally gave an extra measure of timeliness to the exhibit, will seek to determine why previous Venus probes been short-lived.

Nikalaychugai of the U.S.S.R. Academy of Sciences said the pressure on the surface of Venus is 100 times greater than the pressure on the Earth's surface.

He said the temperature on Venus is about 500 centigrade and carbon dioxide makes up 98 per cent of the atmosphere.

"Maybe the space crafts before have been destroyed as a result of the high pressure," he said. "Our scientists hope the landing will tell us."

Tchugai said the prospect of a manned trip to Venus is slight. The conditions are so difficult that a flight to Venus "can only be done in the farthest future."

Regional Health Plan

VANCOUVER (CP) — The provincial government is considering setting up regional health districts, Health Minister Dennis Cocke said Friday.

He said at the opening of a local hospital psychiatric wing that there is a need to inter-relate mental and public health units with hospital facilities and organizations under a combined authority.

Cocke said an increasing number of provincial hospitals are adding psychiatric wings as part of a policy to provide mental health services within communities rather than sending patients to central institutions.

Bell Tel Tests Controls

OTTAWA (CP) — The government's new wage and price control program meets one of its first major tests today as Bell Canada Ltd. resumes its controversial campaign for more than $102 million a year in rate increases.

Bell will urge the Canadian Transport Commission to grant a two-phase increase that the privately-owned telephone company says is vital if service to 4.5 million subscribers in eastern and northern Canada is to be maintained.

The application is the first by a government-regulated industry for higher rates since Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau clamped wide-ranging wage and price controls on the economy Oct. 13.

Officials at the new anti-inflation review board said Friday the transport commission is required by the control program to ensure that any Bell increase is "no more than the amount required to recover additional costs."

A Bell official said the company is prepared to argue that the proposed increases in basic residential, business and other rates are well within any of the price restraint rules set out by the government.

He said the company might make "some changes in the details" but would not alter the over-all size of the latest rate application because of the restraint program.

But some of the 15 intervenors in the Bell application are expected to demand at the hearing that Bell justify each portion of the rate package on the basis of whether or not it is necessary to meet higher costs.

A transport commission official said a three-member panel headed by telecommunication committee chairman Anne Carver likely will open the hearings today with arguments over the impact of the wage and price control program.

"This is going to be a very important factor to be determined at the outset," Andrew Roman, general counsel for the Consumers' Associatin of Canada, one of the intervenors, said Friday.

The anti-inflation board official said the commission will have to exercise discretion in judging whether or not the Bell application meets the wage-price restraints.

While the restraint program requires government regulatory bodies such as the transport commission to restrict rate increases to amounts required to recover costs, Bell's application is based on over-all rates of return. The company is arguing that it must increase its income in order to be in a better position to borrow money to pay for needed expansion and replacement of equipment.

HAITI BOTTLER FINDS PEPSI DEGENERATION

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti (UPI) —The Haitian bottler of Pepsi-Cola, introduced on the island only a month ago, said Sunday "despicable persons" have been putting foreign matter into the drink.

Bottles of Pepsi have been systematically opened, foreign matter added and recapped with the original caps. The bottler did not identify the foreign matter placed in the beverage.

"The company will do everything possible to expose the company or persons endangering public health in an effort to discredit Pepsi-Cola," the statement said.

Russian Predicts Trips to Venus

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union's twin probe of Venus has found evidence of a "live planet" with geological changes caused by possible volcanoes, explosions, quakes and lava flows.

A leading Soviet space expert told the Communist Party newspaper Pravda Sunday men may be able to travel to the earth's closest planetary neighbor by the 21st Century.

Alexander Basilevsky, an expert on space minerology, said Venus 9 and 10 show the planet is subject to geological changes — in contrast to the dormant surface of the moon.

Venus 10 made a soft landing on the cloud-shrouded planet Saturday and sent back two photographs during 65 minutes of operation. Venus 9 landed last Wednesday and transmitted data to earth for 53 minutes.

Basilevsky said one of the photographs shows a "field of rocks" similar to those found in new geological formations on earth.

"For the time being it is possible to say only that the stones are young and it is possible to say that the process that makes them is now going on," he said.

Basilevsky said it was unknown what sort of activity had created the rocks, but raised the possibility of volcanoes, explosions or tremors.

"I am only absolutely sure about one thing," he said. "Even the first picture from Venus showed by all means that there is something present that we have not previously seen and still do not understand."

Pan-Am Harvest 'Satisfying' But Not Like Olympics

Times News Services

MEXICO CITY — Canada won a record 91 medals, including 18 gold, in the 1975 Pan-American Games which wound up here Sunday.

The Canadians won a bronze in the equestrian competition—Sunday's windup event—as well as two silver and a gold Saturday to surpass their previous Pan-Am collection of 90 at the 1967 Pan-Am Games in Winnipeg.

Doug Clement, manager of the 350-member Canadian team, said he was satisfied with its performance. But he noted winning at the Pan-Am is "not the same" as a medal in next year's Olympic Games in Montreal.

"I think I would temper our successes here with a reminder that this is a regional competition," Clement added. "If we can get into the top eight in an Olympic event, it's going to be similar to winning a gold medal here."

Pan-Am performances were mediocre by world standards in most sports. Only two world records were broken—Joao Olivera of Brazil in the triple jump and shooter Elegario Vasquez Rana of Mexico in the individual air rifle.

Twenty-four of Canada's medals were won in swimming, and the swimmers seem to hold greatest hope for medal success in Montreal.

Head swim coach Gaye Stratten of Toronto says Canada has a chance to move ahead of East Germany into second place behind the United States in world ranking.

"Canada ranked third at the world championships, just behind East Germany," said Stratten. "Our problem is to beat out the East Germans, and it's possible. They have strong girls, but their boys' team is very weak."

Bruce Robertson of Vancouver, a former world champion, won five medals—three relay silver and two individual bronze—to emerge as Canada's biggest winner here.

The U.S. team won the gold in the colorful equestrian team event. Mexico was second and Canada came from behind to nose out Brazil for the bronze.

Canada cracked the boxing gold treasure trove for the first time ever when little Chris Clarke, a gritty Halifax lightweight, took a low blow from his American opponent, Aaron Pryor, in the second round of the final and dropped to his knees. Pryor was disqualified and Clarke declared the winner. At the time, the Canadian was ahead on points.

Hull Back On Ice

Times News Services

Winnipeg Jets had Bobby Hull back in uniform Sunday night, ending a one-game protest against violence in the World Hockey Association and in hockey generally.

Hull sat out Friday's game and said Saturday he was going to remain out until he felt league officials were prepared at least to try to stem the growing violence in the WHA.

Jets' coach Bobby Kromm said the veteran left-winger decided Sunday that he had made his point.

Hull scored the first goal in Winnipeg's 5-0 home-ice win over Phoenix. In other Sunday games, Indianapolis edged Edmonton 4-3 and New England downed Calgary 3-1. Saturday. Cleveland beat Edmonton 5-2, Cincinnati took Houston 7-4, Quebec shaded Toronto 3-2 and San Diego dumped Minnesota 6-1.

Ginnell Won't Talk After Cougars Lose

On the basis of technical finery, Victoria Cougars turned in only three good periods out of six at the weekend — enough to earn a split of two Western Canada Hockey League encounters at Memorial Arena.

It wasn't good enough to suit coach Pat Ginnell.

Because the Cougars almost blew a four-goal lead, Ginnell wasn't overly satisfied with Saturday's performance despite his team's 5-4 victory over Saskatoon Blades.

He showed greater anger Sunday after Kamloops Chiefs hung a 7-2 loss on the Cougars. He stormed out of the Arena moments after the final buzzer and wasn't in the mood for his usual post-game interviews.

Obviously, he let Victoria's performances do the talking.

They weren't inspirational. Saturday, the Cougars dominated the opening period to jump off to a 4-0 lead, then flattened out in the final two sessions.

Even though the Cougars' play was adequate in the first and third periods, Sunday was sadder. A horrendous second period by the Cougars made it easy for Kamloops to run an unbeaten streak to six games.

Cougars were stung hardest by an inept offense, ineffective goaltending and Kamloops' power-play that produced five straight goals in the second period.

Three of the five goals came while Chiefs enjoyed manpower advantages.

Neither Dan Rogers nor Gerry Simpson, who shuttled in and out of the Cougar goal, could stem Kamloops' outburst, launched by a long shot that Rogers failed to hold and which then dribbled into the goal while he tried to recover.

While the most obvious, defensive failings weren't the only weaknesses. Victoria's attack also suffered a big letdown. Cougars managed only one direct shot — that by Jeff McDill at the 6:14 mark — for the first 17 minutes of the second period.

By time Cougars managed their second shot on Kamloops' goaltender Brian Henderson, the Chiefs were out in front 6-1.

In winning, the second-place Chiefs moved three points ahead of Victoria in the Western Division standing.

Saskatoon, meanwhile, relinquished second place in the Eastern Division. The Chiefs, who play the Cougars again Tuesday, bowed 6-4 to New Westminster Bruins and dropped to third when Lethbridge Broncos defeated Calgary Centennials 5-2.

Medicine Hat Tigers closed to within one point of the third-place Cougars with a pair of victories, 6-2 over Lthbridge on Saturday and 5-3 over Edmonton on Sunday.

Winnipeg Cub dumped Regina Pats 7-3 in the weekend's only other game.

Scorpions Still Have That Scoring Touch

By D'ARCY KAVANAGH
Times Staff

Victoria Scorpions demonstrated to coach Howard Tooby over the weekend they still possess the scoring power which made them regular-season champions in the Dogwood Inter-City Senior "A" Men's Basketball League last season.

With every player seeing action Sunday, Scorpions scored a thrilling 116-115 triumph over Renton Roadrunners at the University of Victoria's old gym.

Saturday, the Victoria squad dropped a 105-102 decision to Renton.

In senior women's action at UVic's old gym, Victoria Home Lumber took a pair of games from Seattle Sandpipers, winning 68-59 Sunday and 76-60 Saturday.

Scorpions almost lost Sunday's game with a last-quarter defensive lapse. Ahead 92-85 after three quarters, they lost the lead midway through the final stanza only to regain it for good when Brian MacKenzie scored a field goal with six seconds left.

George Carter had a chance to win the game for Renton immediately after MacKenzie's field goal but missed on two free throws.

League scoring champion Bob Burrows topped the Scorpions with 29 points while Dave Morgan added 28 and newcomer Garry Budd 13.

Bruce Sanderson had 35 points and John Cullen 31 for the Roadrunners, who trailed 70-59 at the half.

Saturday, Bob Burrows led Victoria with 35 points while Carter scored 29 and Harvey Johnson 24 for Renton.

Home Lumber overcame a 34-32 half-time deficit to win Sunday's game. Angie Dobie had 23 points and Mary Coutts 20 for the winners while Mara McCleary popped in 20 for Seattle.

Mrs. Coutts topped Home Lumber Saturday with 28 points while Cathy Benedetto, a former member of the U.S. national squad, led the Sandpipers with 20 points.

Thorburn Wins Easily

OTTAWA (CP) — Cliff Thorburn of Victoria, now living in Toronto, became the Canadian snooker champion Saturday, scoring 11-1 over Bill Werbeniuk of Winnipeg.

Werbeniuk is the defending North American champion. He and Thorburn were the only professionals among the 20 entries.

Thorburn won $1,500 and $1,175 for his preliminary victories. Werbeniuk also won $1,175 in reaching the final.

In the final, played in seven-game sections with a maximum 21 games, Thorburn moved into a 7-0 lead Friday night and wrapped up his repeat of the championship Saturday night when Werbeniuk won only one of five matches played.

Proceviat Paces Red Wings

Wayne Proceviat scored two goals to lead Victoria Ray's Red Wings to an 8-3 win over Juan de Fuca Gulls in a South Island Junior "B" Hockey League game Sunday at Juan de Fuca Arena.

Stan Alstad, Ralph Fraser, Larry Hansen, Jamie Robertson, Ken Wilson and Dwight Crockett were the other marksmen for the Red Wings, who led 4-1 after the first period and 6-3 after the second.

Murray Greig, Barry McLachland and Ron Hope replied for Juan de Fuca.

In action Saturday, Saanich Braves moved into a first-place tie with Esquimalt by defeating Lake Cowichan Bairds 8-3 at Lake Cowichan Arena.

Murray McLaren led the Braves with five goals with Ron Vincent chipping in two and Wayne Larsen one. Mark Coulombe, Kim Dozak and Shindy Kalar were the Lake Cowichan scorers.

Nightmares Continue For Rangers' Goalies

By The Canadian Press

Even a change in goaltenders didn't help the floundering New York Rangers on Sunday night.

Still reeling from poundings they took from Buffalo Sabres and New York Islands, the Rangers threw Ed Giacomin into the breach against Philadelphia Flyers.

The Flyers directed only 25 shots at Giacomin, but seven of them got by the veteran and the Flyers had a 7-2 triumph at Madison Square Garden.

Coach Ron Stewart started Giacomin in place of John Davidson, who endured a 9-1 loss to Buffalo on Wednesday, then took a 7-1 beating from the Islanders on Saturday.

Meanwhile, the Sabres won their eighth game in as many starts Sunday; squeezing by California Seals 3-2 and Washington Capitals won for the first time this year, downing Chicago Black Hawks 7-5.

Boston Bruins dropped the hapless Detroit Red Wings 7-3 and Los Angeles Kings defeated Minnesota North Stars 4-2 in Sunday's other games.

In Saturday's other games, Toronto Maple Leafs tied California 2-2, St. Louis Blues topped Atlanta Flames 7-3, Philadelphia tied Pittsburgh Penguins 4-4, Montreal Canadiens whipped Boston 6-2, Buffalo downed Detroit 5-3 and Chicago blanked Kansas City Scouts 4-0.

Three third-period goals by the Flyers on seven shots broke open their game with the Rangers.

Bill Barber scored three times for Philadelphia, twice in the third period, and assisted on the third goal in the period, scored by Bobby Clarke.

Jacques Richard, the former top draft pick acquired from Atlanta in a pre-season deal, scored for Buffalo midway in the third period to break a 2-2 tie.

The Bruins fired 50 shots at Detroit goalie Jim Rutherford, 21 in a four-goal second period. Bobby Schmautz scored three times for the Bruins.

Tom Williams scored his first goal of the year in the first minute of the second period to give the Kings their win. Marcel Dionne scored one goal and assisted on two for Los Angeles.

Spectacular goaltending by Ron Low, who had 48 saves to 17 for Chicago's Tony Esposito, helped the Capitals to their first win after eight losses and a tie.

FIELD HOCKEY LEADERS GAIN

Subhash Sharma and Mike Padget took advantage of weak Oak Bay defences Sunday to pad their scoring totals in the Vancouver Island Men's Field Hockey Association.

Sharma scored five times as Tigers downed Oak Bay I 11-0 at Lansdowne while Padget had three goals as Castaways trimmed Oak Bay III 7-0 at Beacon Hill Park.

In other games, Rebels II downed University of Victoria 3-0 and Colonials beat Kamgonis 6-0.

TIGERS (11) — Sharma 5, Armitt Hundel 4, Jaswan Samra, Buta. OAK BAY I (0).

CASTAWAYS (7) — Padget 3, Gord Hutchison, David Auld, Alaistair Glegg 2. OAK BAY II (0).

COLONIALS (6) — Phil Watt 2, Steve Murphy, Trevor Baggott, Ron Vincent. KANGONIS (0).

REBELS I I(3) — Dan Tourangeau, Lorne Carnes, Tom Davies. UVIC (0).

Toller Prevails

EDMONTON (CP) — Controversial Toller Cranston of Toronto rode his reputation as the world's most innovative skater into the men's singles championship Saturday at Skate Canada 75.

Cranston got his usual high marks for artistic impression but lost marks for technical merit as he sauntered through a five-minute freestyle display which included only one triple jump.

Ron Shaver of Cambridge, Ont., who finished second, and Terry Kubicka of Cypress, Calif., drew much more applause and critical approval for adventurous performances before a crowd of 8,500.

Shaver drew cheers after opening with three successive triple toe-loops, believed the first time a skater had done more than one triple at a time.

Kubicko leaped into third place on the strength of a full somersault, never before completed in competition.

Barbara Berezowski of Toronto and David Porter of Port Perry, Ont., had roses thrown at them for an outstanding freestyle demonstration as they climbed to second place in ice dancing and Susan MacDonald of Vancouver held off several experienced rivals to maintain fourth place in women's singles.

The dance title went to Natalia Linichuk and Gennadi Karponosov of Russia.

Susanna Driano, a lanky 18-year-old representing Italy although she was born in Seattle and now trains in Denver, overcame Kath Malmberg of Rockford, Ill., to win the women's title.

Coach Jerry Barclay of James Bay Athletic Association Canadians has been given a 10-game suspension by South Island Big Six Hockey League president Ivan Temple.

In a game Saturday at Chemainus, Western Home Buckaroos downed Chemainus Blues 5-3 on goals by George Fuller, Russ Swanton, Bill Pettinger, Randy Krantz and Dennis Sproule. Chemainus goals went to Greg Gow, Frank Clark and Darryl Hickson.

Canadian Horse Runs to Record Payoff

Times News Services

Snow Knight earned a Canadian record winner's share of $113,220 for his owner, Toronto industrialist E. P. Taylor, when he held off charging rivals in the stretch Sunday to win the Canadian International Championship Stakes on the turf course at Toronto's Woodbine track.

The total purse of $188,700 was also a Canadian record and the $359,000 wagered on the race that the four-year-old Snow Knight won in the slow time of two minutes 43.1 seconds for the one and five-eighths miles was a new high for Woodbine. Most of the money went on the favored French entry, Dahlia, which finished fourth behind runner-up Comtesse de Loir, representing France, and Toronto-owned Carney's Point.

Taylor purchased Snow Knight after a winning effort last year in England's Epsom Derby.

The latter raced to the outside, gained the lead leaving the stretch turn, but could not cope with Y. B. WISE. PRINCE RICHARD saved ground early, and finished willingly from between the top two. TEAR AND A SMILE set all the early pace, but had little left for the real test. GREAT GUNS ROSE and BIG ED JOHNSON began to drop back leaving the stretch turn. Start good, won driving.

Times 'Cap To El Escorial

By BILL WALKER
Times Staff

A "claim" is an integral part of horse racing and Derek Green, a director of the Capital City Turf Club, knows it all too well right now.

Earlier this year Green owned the five-year-old gelding, El Escorial, but lost the horse in a claiming race.

In September, El Escorial was entered in a $5,000 race, which was less than he was claimed for in June, and Green figured now was as good a time as any to get back his pride and joy.

But he lost the shake. There was another claim for El Escorial and Saturday at Sandown Park, Green had to sit and watch as El Escorial won the Times Handicap for owner Heather Clyde and her trainer husband, Doug.

It was the second win of the meeting for Escorial, the sixth of the year, and his earnings now are near $14,000. It wasn't easy, though, No Help making a charging run in the stretch only to be beaten by a neck. El Escorial went off as the favorite and paid $4.60 to win. The winner was decorated by Gwen Underhill, wife of Stuart Underhill, publisher of the Times.

All signs at the mutuels continued to say "go" and for the fourth straight day a betting mark was set. The handle of $276,009 was the highest ever at the track, $87,000 more than the former daily high, and the figure for six days is $989,282, far above expectations.

The morning weather on Saturday was dreadful, but the fans came, 4,751 of then.

But the longshot players had lots to be happy with, starting in the first race when Weed Song, a $130 buy, went wire to wire, returned $34.10 and combined with Black Sherry for an Exacto of $266.60. Then in the second, Tivols Son, a front runner who had been stopping lately, apparently found the footing to his liking and popped down at 15-1 for a $32.50 payoff and set up a quinella with High Falar of $119.80.

Soccer Vikings Shock T-Birds

University of Victoria Vikings took a step towards the Canada West University Athletic Association soccer title with an upset win Sunday at Centennial Stadium.

The Vikisgs got two goals from Mike Sails and shoutout goaltending from Mike Armstrong as they posted a 4-0 victory over University of British Columbia Thunderbirds.

The contest was the first of the four-team, round-robin Canada West tournament, which continued Nov. 1-2 in Edmonton. Alberta and Saskatchewan are the other schools in the event with the winner advancing to the Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Association finals Nov. 8-10 at UVic. Vikings will play in the CIAU tourney as host team regardless of the outcome of the Canada West tournament.

Sails opened Sunday's scoring midway through the first half when he connected on a header. He boosted the score to 2-0 at the 47-minute mark after taking a pass from Peter Mason. Doug Puritch made it 3-0 after 62 minutes on a penalty kick and Vic Escude completed the scoring with two minutes left.

Another premier division team in the Vancouver Island Soccer League was less productive Sunday. Canadian champion London Boxing Club dropped a 2-0 decision to D'Italia in the National Soccer League of Ontario's fifth annual invitational tournament.

In league play, Victoria West took over sole possession of second place with a 7-2 victory over Gorge United at Heywood Avenue Park and Cosmopolitan Royals downed Duncan Powell Men's Wear 4-0 in Powell River.

Rob Williams led Vic West with four goals while Helge Fylling, Steve Forsland and Mark Bollie each scored once. Randy Johnson and Ed Murray replied for the losers.

Rudi Kuebler scored three times to pace the league-leading Royals with Bob Mackie adding the other marker.

Saturday, Oak Bay and Gorge Molsons tied 1-1 at Royal Athletic Park. Bobby Duncan scored for Oak Bay while Leigh Hegann tallied for Molsons.

Esks Clinch First, Lions Stay Alive

Times News Service

Edmonton Eskimos wrapped up first place in the Western Football Conference while B.C. Lions kept their faint playoff hopes alive in Canadian Football League action over the weekend.

Eskimos clinched first place Sunday as they outlasted Winnipeg Blue Bombers 48-41 in Edmonton while the Lions moved within two points of the third-place Bombers in the WFC with a 12-8 win Saturday over the visiting Saskatchewan Roughriders.

In other action, Sonny Wade tossed two fourth-quarter touchdown passes to give the Alouettes a 26-20 triumph over Calgary Stampeders Sunday in Montreal and the Argonauts defeated Hamilton Tiger-Cats 27-23 Saturday in Toronto.

Sunday's Edmonton-Winnipeg game was played is a steady snowfall and minus-two (celsius) temperatures, but the frigid conditions did little to cool either club's offence.

The Esks took a 21-3 lead in the first 16 minutes of play and staved off a desperate Winnipeg comeback based on the passing arm of quarterback Ralph Brock.

Brockthrew 48 times and completed 23 for 407 yards and four touchdowns but it wasn't enough to catch the Eskimos, who got started early when Larry Highbaugh returned the opening kickoff 109 yards for a touchdown.

Highbaugh added another 116-yard touchdown on a punt return while Dave Cutler converted all six Edmonton touchdowns to break one CFL record and equal another.

Cutler, with one game left to play, has 157 points, eight more than the single season record set by Tommy-Joe Coffey off the Ticats in 1969. The two field goals gave Cutler 36 for the season, equalling the single-season total set by Gerry Organ of Ottawa Rough Riders last year.

Lions beat the Roughriders for the second time in three outings this season with one of their strongest defensive displays of the year.

They held the high-powered Roughriders to only a third-quarter touchdown and intercepted quarterback Ron Lancaster three times including one by former Roughrider Bob Pearce with less than two minutes left.

Dolphins Win Thriller

By The Associated Press

Don Nottingham barreled over from the one-yard line with just 1:25 remaining to score his third touchdown of the afternoon Sunday as Miami Dolphins beat Buffalo Bills 35-30 in a thrilling see-saw National Football League game.

The Bills took a 30-21 lead late is the final period on Joe Ferguson's second touchdown pass of the game, a five-yarder to Bob Chandler. But Miami came back on the arm of quarterback Bob Griese to pull within two points, 30-28, on a four-yard touchdown pass to Jim Mandich.

Buffalo, declining to sit on its two-point lead immediately went to the air on first down and Ferguson's pass was picked off by safety Jake Scott at the Bills' 22. Six plays later Nottingham scored.

In other NFL games, Cincinnati Bengals won 21-14 over Atlanta Falcons, New England Patriots beat San Francisco '49ers 24-16, Dallas Cowboys edged Philadelphia Eagles 20-17, Pittsburgh Steelers defeated Green Bay Packers 16-13, Houston Oilers trimmed Detroit Lions 24-8, Washington Redskins embarrassed Cleveland Browns 23-7, Baltimore Colts bombed New York Jets 45-28, Kansas City Chiefs beat Denver Broncos 26-13, Lost Angeles Rams rocked New Orleans Saints 38-14 and Oakland Raiders defeated San Diego 25-0.

St. Louis beat New York Giants 20-13 Saturday.

Quarterback Ken Anderson's three-yard run with 2:04 left gave Cincinnati its sixth straight victory.

Rookie quarterback Steve Grogan, replacing injured Jim Plunkett, threw a pair of touchdown passes for New England.

Rocky Bleier gained 163 yards on 34 carries and Roy Gerela booted a 29-yard field goal with 1:04 left to lift Pittsburgh past stubborn Green Bay.

Bert Jones passed to rookie Marshall Johnson for two touchdowns and ran for a third as Baltimore grounded the Jets.

Mike Livingston ran for one touchdown and passed for another, and Jan Stenerud kicked four field goals for Kansas City.

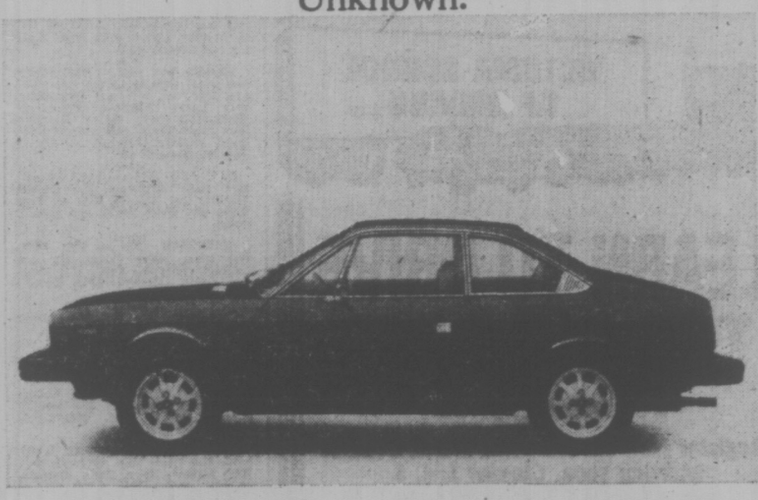
Unknown.



Lancia has finally come to Canada. With a car that's bound to make it famous in no time: the Lancia Beta.
The Beta is a highly refined touring car. It's finished to a level you simply don't see on mass-produced vehicles. And in performance, it's nothing short of extraordinary.
But for all its enormous speed and exceptional handling, it doesn't demand much more from you than the car you now own.
The Beta comes in a Coupe and a 4-door Saloon. And both cost far less than you'd ever expect to pay for cars of this type.
Which means they certainly won't be unknown long.

Brawling Fans Hold Up Contest

LONDON (AP) — West Ham toppled Manchester United, 2-1, Saturday after a hectic game in which play was held up by fighting spectators.

After Bobby Gould had sent West Ham into the lead in the 70 minute, fights broke out on the terraces and spilled onto the field. As 200 police struggled to break up the fights, the referee took the teams off the field and play was held up for 20 minutes.

The West Ham-Manchester United game was a rugged affair of hard tackling, with a highly charged atmosphere among the 38,528 spectators.

The drama boiled up midway through the second half. Lou Macari scored for Manchester, Bobby Gould made it 2-1 for West Ham and a massive fight broke out on the terraces behind the West Ham's goal.

It followed a scuffle between the players when Gould challenged Stepney for the ball.

Police moved into the fighting crowd but within minutes about 400 fist-swinging fans were struggling on the field. The teams went to the dressing rooms as police battled to get things under control.

Dozens of fans were arrested, or carried off injured by ambulance men, before the game got started again. Then West Ham held out under heavy pressure for the home win.

$25,000 Boost Given Greenpeace

A $25,000 matching grant for next year's Greenpeace anti-whaling expedition has been made by the B.C. government, project co-ordinator Bob Hunter announced Sunday in Victoria.

Hunter said the trip will cost a minimum of $100,000—about the same as this year's two-vessel voyage to disrupt Soviet whaling in the Pacific.

"Now we are concentrating on having one boat and we won't be into spending money on electronic equipment to communicate with the whales—because there aren't enough whales left," he said.

"We got a letter from (provincial secretary) Ernie Hall saying that the provincial government will match us dollar for money we raise up to $25,000 for ongoing Greenpeace activities," Hunter said in a dockside interview at Oak Bay Marina where his floating home — the 32-foot former provincial police boat Astral—was berthed at the weekend.

The Greenpeace Foundation plans to buy a boat capable of 20 knots (to keep up with the Soviets) for resale after the expedition.

The foundation has also put together a color slide and movie package with sound on this year's 84-day voyage. The show will be presented to the Victoria public in December at a location to be announced.

"We've been promised a letter by (education minister) Eileen Dailly allowing us to go into all the schools with this presentation," said Hunter. "In it, you see Zodiaks (rubber rafts) among the whaling boats and you see the harpoon flying through the air and the whales fleeing for their lives and the operation on the factory ships . . ."

Hunter said the program will give continuity to the Greenpeace story, showing the actual confrontation, instead of "just a few shots of people playing music to whales; chaser boats and dead whales."

Next year, with a faster boat, the Greenpeace crew might get rougher treatment from the whalers, the former Vancouver Sun columnist said.

"We're going to insist on use of flak jackets and safety helmets," he said. "If those 250 lb. harpoons miss the whale they explode and cover the area with shrapnel."

In Victoria there is a Greenpeace team of about a dozen headed by Bob Ikle of 3323 Linwood.

Other projects the group is working on include an anti-sealing campaign this winter on the Labrador ice floes. Nine Greenpeace members will use a harmless red dye to stain the coats of baby harp seals to make them commercially worthless. If the seals survive the hunt, they grow new coats.

Phileas and Concorde: A History of Travel

It was just one of those pleasant little coincidences, so cherished by a columnist.

I chanced to be re-reading Jules Verne's "Around the World in 80 Days," perhaps the most durable of all books, when my last-week's mail disgorged a new "background brief" about Concorde, the supersonic airliner soon to go into service. The booklet gives some new figures on the proven time of flights between distant points — San Francisco to Anchorage in two hours and 14 minutes, Boston to Paris and back to Boston in seven hours and 28 minutes, London to Gander in two hours and 19 minutes, and so on.

Though it does not seem to have had the same effect on editors who decide what makes news, Concorde's performance continues to boggle the mind. It is even more boggling if you happen to be reading a travel book from out of the not-too-distant past. Indeed, it is hard to think in human terms of what this faster-than-sound airplane is going to mean to the crossing of new horizons. Any attempt to compare it with the adventures of Phileas Fogg breaks down.

Incidentally, before I forget it, I still think the finest love speech in past or present literature is that of Phileas, a man of great reserve, imperturbable dignity and true British phlegm, who simply melted away before the devotion of Aouda. "I love you!" he cried. "Yes, by all that is holiest, I love you and I am entirely yours!" You're not supposed to ask what this has to do with Concorde).

Even allowing for M. Verne's staggering imagination, we must concede, I think, that travel for profit or pleasure by the standards of 1873 are impossible to equate with the travel that we know in 1975 or that we will come to accept so casually next year when we arrive in the Supersonic Age.

Even so, I fancy that a global circuit by steamer, railway, horse carriage, ice sled and elephant may have been just an eensy-weensy bit more fun than hurtling through the stratosphere at some 1400 miles per hour and we will have to accept the fact that getting to a destination — in some cases — at an earlier hour than when we left is going to take some of the traditional fun from travel.

Phileas, of course, actually made the trip in 79 days (it wasn't like him, having a mind as tidy as a filing cabinet, but he overlooked the fact that by constantly going eastward he gained a full day) yet I wonder seriously if he could maintain the same schedule today.

It seems quite logical in this timeless story that he should leave on the trip the very same evening he'd made the spontaneous bet of 20,000 pounds. But that would never do in today's world. Never do at all.

He'd have to give himself at least two weeks for inoculations, passport renewal, issuance of visas from the countries en route, reservations, confirmations and re-confirmations by the transport companies, traveller's cheques, letters from his clergyman, doctor, banker and police chief and all the rest of the form-filling snarl of red tape peculiar to this enlightened age.

Where Phileas slipped from one country to another as easy as apple pie, the modern-day Fogg would be up to his chin in declarations (in triplicate) swearing that he was not in possession of firearms or a hundred pounds of beeswax or that he'd never planned to overthrow a government by force.

Or, worse, he'd be sitting in waiting rooms, biding his time until some lout of a customs inspector would consent to paw through his luggage and — bang! — there would go his timetable and his wager. Even with Concorde it's expected that the airport-to-city travel time will often exceed the in-flight time.

★ ★ ★

All that Phileas actually carried in the way of documentation was a red-bound copy of Bradshaw's Railway Steam Transit and General Guide, it got him around the world in 1873. It wouldn't get him across the first fortified border today.

I wonder if the durability of "Around The World in 80 Days" can't be partly explained by the fact that Phileas Fogg is the classic example in literature of a character overcoming the vicissitudes of travel, then and now.

Any reader who has been at the mercy of storm-tossed ships or slide-bound trains or airliners that seemed reluctant to leave the ground on schedule can't help but be the devoted admirer of this fictional hero who took everything with stoicism and found an ingenious way out.

My own years of stored-up fuming and fretting at the inevitable delays and discomfort of getting from one place to another melt away in the face of this fabled man whose simple creed was "The unforeseen does not exist."

When his train across India reached the end of the rails, why, he simply hired that elephant and rode serenely on in the howdah. When his trans-Atlantic steamer ran too short of fuel to keep up speed, he simply purchased the ship and had the crew burn the poop, cabins, bunks and decking to maintain the pressure. What else?

He was, in short, the ideal peripatetic of all time. The Concorde may make his travelling time look ridiculous, perhaps, but who could ever meet a dish like Aouda in a supersonic?

Ask The Times

Q. When was the family allowance program started in Canada? Also the unemployment insurance program and income tax?—E.M.

A. Family allowance cheques started in 1945. Unemployment insurance began as a national program in 1940 with the first premiums being paid in July, 1941, and first payout beginning in February, 1942. Companies began paying income taxes in 1901 but the first personal income tax started in 1917 with the Temporary War Income Tax Act which called for a 4 per cent tax on corporation income and taxes ranging from 4 per cent to 29 per cent on individual incomes. The temporary tax became permanent in 1948 when it was replaced by the Income Tax Act, which was subsequently amended further in 1952 and 1972.

Young Faces Last-Minute Opposition

Unopposed until only a few days ago in his bid for the mayor's office in Victoria, Ald. Mike Young now faces five rivals in the Nov. 15 election.

A flurry of last-minute nominees before today's noon deadline included two virtually unknown candidates both in their 20s: school teacher William McElroy, 215 Linden, and self-styled writer Russell Shillington, 411 Durban.

Joe Richards, a frequent contender for aldermanic elections, also filed papers for the mayoralty, as did realtor William Hollick, who lost to Mayor Peter Pollen in 1973 elections.

Henry Bitterman, who recently sold his real estate business at Douglas and Hillside, was at first refused by city clerk Morran Waller when he attempted to file papers on grounds that he was disqualified under the Municipal Act because he has a "disputed account" with the municipality. Waller later allowed him to file.

(The matter involved a six-foot wide strip of land on Bitterman's former property which the city has been trying to appropriate for more than two years.)

Bitterman was refused on similar grounds when he ran for alderman two years ago, but subsequently appealed and his candidacy was allowed.

New entry Shillington, 25, was employed until recently in Victoria post office but said he left before the current strike.

He said he is now collecting unemployment insurance, and asked if that was his reason for running said: "Well, I do need a job and I am available."

He has lived in Victoria five years and graduated from University of Victoria in 1973 with a degree in sociology.

Shillington's platform would include the legalizing of all drugs, as a means of reducing the rising crime rate in Victoria.

He said he would also work toward the total exclusion of traffic from city centre, and foster better negotiations between the city and its employees to avoid a recurrence of the recent civic dispute.

Shillington, who has long blond hair said one of his particular reasons for running is to stimulate mayoralty candidate Mike Young into declaring a platform. Young has been too nebulous, he said, adding "I would like to pull him out so he starts talking about certain things."

McElroy, 29, graduated from UVic last year and is registered with the Greater Victoria School District as a substitute teacher. He has lived in Victoria seven years.

He said today he made up his mind to run only a few days ago when reading newspaper accounts of the "great debate on Sunday closing" (the proposed ban on many types of retail activity on Sundays).

"I thought with all the problems Victoria has, housing for instance, it's ridiculous for council to spend all its time arguing about whether people can buy shoes or clothes hangers on a Sunday," he said.

Oak Bay Mayor Brian Smith and three incumbent were elected by acclamation, as were the mayors and aldermen of North Saanich and Lake Cowichan.

In Saanich there will be a three-way race for mayor, incumbent Mayor Ed Lum being challenged by former alderman Mel Couvelier, who resigned midway through a two-year term to enter the race, and newcomer Jim Maxwell.

Biggest surprise in the two-year aldermanic race is the decision of incumbent Bill Campbell not to run. Campbell has served 11 consecutive years on council.

Sidney promises the liveliest election action outside the core municipalities with four men — three with council experience — seeking the office of retiring Mayor Stan Dear.

There are also five candidates for three council seats, three seeking two one-year terms and two seeking one 13-month term.

POPPIES GOING ON SALE SOON

Poppies soon will go on sale in Greater Victoria for Remembrance week which begins Wednesday, Nov. 5.

This year's target is $22,000, the same as in 1975, with the money to be spent on welfare services for veterans and their dependents.

Walter Logan, chairman of the Remembrance Day Committee, said that in addition to welfare services, revenue from the last two years' campaigns has also helped provide grants to the Royal Canadian Legion's senior citizens housing project in Central Saanich.

The main sales of poppies will take place Nov. 7, 8 and 10 but poppy exhibits and information booths will be in the major shopping centres during the week prior to Remembrance Day.

Regional Board Head Re-elected

Three directors on the Capital Regional Board have been re-elected by acclamation following the close of nominations at noon today.

In Victoria mayoralty candidate Mike Young and five council candidates are nominees for the single regional seat open. But in Esquimalt only mayoralty candidate Art Young is going after the single opening. Successful candidates must be elected to council Nov. 15 before they are eligible to take their places on the regional board.

In municipalities only member of council may sit on the regional board.

In total, 13 of the board's 18 seats were up for filling at next month's election. Other directors have a year to run on their two-year terms.

The major contests will be in Saanich, Sooke and Sidney. All three of the Saanich seats on the board are open and there are four nominations, including the three incumbents.

In Sidney, the three aldermen seeking the chair of retiring mayor Stan Dear are also each seeking Sidney's lone regional board seat.

A draft community plan for Sooke, now before the regional board, may be the reason three are vying for the seat left vacant with the retirement of director Ron Dumont.

Dumont's departure and retirement of Colwood director Dick Emery means there will be at least two new regional directors when the new board sits in January.

Following are the nominations with x denoting incumbent.

Nutritional Variety at Little Expense

HILDA BEASTALL

One of the easiest ways to introduce nutritional variety at little expense is by making a small batch of bread dough for turning into two or three dozen rolls or buns.

When we check the price of Barkerhouse Rolls, Cloverleaf Rolls and even Plain Round Rolls we are likely to decide they are something we can do without.

Yet they add something to the elegance of a meal in a restaurant even if not to the food value, for they are frequently left on the plate, half eaten because other food portions are rarely matched to appetites.

At home, we can use rolls as a special part of a meal. Homemade rolls with herbed butter spread, a creamed hard boiled egg spread, mashed sardines; or with a couple of kinds of cheese and a green salad — here is the making of a nutritious and delicious light lunch or a second course instead of dessert for supper.

Producing the rolls at home makes it possible to use the combination of flours we like most; and cost is down to a minimum.

The variety of shapes from one bathch of dough makes an interesting supply to warm up for breakfast in place of the slice of store bread toasted that becomes so boring when appetite is low.

If yeast bread making is new to you, this recipe is a good one to start on. The amount of flour is small enough to handle easily. It doesn't appal you by having a huge batch of dough under the hands and the fear of spoiling the job.

Kneading amounts to drawing the dough forward on the floured board, folding it over and repeating about six times, just enough to smooth the dough.

From this amount you get 24 to 30 rolls, according to size.

YEAST ROLLS IN VARIETY

½ cup warm water
1 tsp sugar
1 pkt or 1 Tbsp granular yeast
½ cup hot water
4 Tbsp soft margarine
1 Tbsp sugar
½ tsp salt
1 small egg
1 cup unbleached flour
½ cup wheat germ
1½ cups (approx.) wholewheat flour

Measure warm water into large bowl. Stir in 1 teaspoon sugar. Sprinkle granular yeast on surface. Let stand 10 minutes until smooth. Stir well.

Meanwhile measure soft margarine into a small basin. Pour hot water over it; add 1 tablespoon sugar and the salt. Stir all until margarine melted; add egg and beat.

Mixture will now be about same temperature as yeast mixture. Add two mixtures together with 1 cup flour in the large bowl. Beat well with a wooden spoon until fairly smooth.

Stir in wheat germ and wholewheat flour, beating and stirring until you have a soft dough.

Have an extra quarter cup of flour ready to flour the pastry board. Dough will be quite soft; use just enough flour to coat for handling without sticking while kneading as explained above.

Next, replace dough in greased bowl, turning to grease the top too.

Cover with plastic film (the grease prevents sticking) and let rise in a warm place free of draught until doubled in bulk — about 1 hour. A warmed clean old bath towel over all helps keep an even temperature.

When risen, stir down the dough; turn out on lightly floured board; divide into two equal parts with a knife.

Roll out one half to a quarter-inch thickness; using a 2½-inch cutter or cup, cut into rounds.

Gather up odd pieces of dough; kneed a couple of seconds to make smooth. Then cut more circles until that half of dough is used.

Crease each round with back of knife just off centre. Brush lightly with soft margarine; fold over and seal edges with fingers.

Place on greased baking sheet. (A cookie sheet is just right.)

With remaining half of dough, roll out to half inch thick; cut with 1½ to 2-inch cutter.

Place on greased baking sheet with ½ inch between.

NOTE: Close spacing of yeast rolls results in soft side crusts; wide spacing will give crisper crusts all around.

Cover with film and warm towel as before; let rise in warm place, until doubled, about 45 minutes.

Bake in fairly hot oven 205 deg. C. about 15 minutes until lightly browned. Cool at once on wire racks. This prevents sogginess at bottom of rolls and breads.

An interesting variation is the making of Cloverleaf Rolls. This is done by pinching off small pieces of dough (after the first rising) forming into tiny balls, and dropping three or four side by side in greased muffin pans.

Very small muffin pans take three marble sized pieces; larger pans take three of billiard ball size.

Proceed as above by covering and putting to rise for the second period before baking. Bake in fairly hot oven 205 deg. C. about 15 minutes until light brown. Remove and cool on wire rack.

An attractive variation for a family table is Bubble Bread This is made from the same recipe list and will take the whole amount.

When dough is stirred down after first rising, divide into 32 equal pieces. On the lightly floured board, pat and shape into balls.

Grease a 9-inch ring mould or tube pan. Place 16 balls in one layer at bottom; of the remaining 16, place 11 in the outer edge row and remaining five around the tube at the inner edge.

Proceed as above, covering with plastic film and putting to rise for the second time in a warm place until nearly doubled in bulk, about 45 minutes.

Bake in moderate oven 180 deg. C. for about 50 minutes, until a good even color.

Remove from pan and cool on wire rack.

Now comes another recipe for rolls which needs only one rising. The longer beating stretches the gluten of the flour and takes the place of the first rising.

The batch of rolls can be out of the oven in 1¾ hours from setting the yeast to work in the bowl.

SUPPER ROLLS

½-cup warm water
1 tsp sugar
1 pkt or 1 tbsp granular yeast
1 cup hot skim milk
1 tbsp sugar
1 tsp salt
3 tbsp soft margarine
2 cups unbleached flour
1 cup whole wheat flour
¾-cup soya flour

Pour hot milk over margarine, salt and 1 tablespoon sugar. Let cool.

In large bowl, measure ½-cup warm water, add 1 teaspoon sugar and stir. Sprinkle yeast on surface. Let stand 10 minutes.

When both liquids about same temperature (the 10 minutes) mix together in large bowl; beat in half the flours mixed. Beat well.

Add remaining flour and stir until mixed.

Roll out on lightly floured board to ¼-inch thick. Cut with 2½-inch cutter or cup. Brush with soft margarine and fold half the rounds, leaving remainder as circles.

Place on greased cookie sheet. Let rise in warm place, covered, for one hour or until double in bulk.

Bake in moderate oven 177 deg. C. for 20 minutes or until a light brown.

This makes about three dozen rolls.

Make one batch of any of these rolls; have success; and you will find yourself planning to indulge in the pleasure and economy each week of serving homemade bread products excelling any that you can buy.

Heimlich Technique Endorsed

CHICAGO (AP) — A first-aid technique developed by a Cincinnati surgeon for saving the lives of persons choking on food or other objects has been endorsed by the American Medical Association's commission on emergency medical services.

The technique, called the "Heimlich manoeuvre," was developed by Dr. Henry Heimlich of the Jewish Hospital, Cincinnati.

It came into general use following a report by Heimlich in Emergency Medicine, a medical journal, in June, 1974.

The AMA commission, in a statement in the Oct. 27 issue of the AMA Journal, says it thinks "the manoeuvre to be a most important addition to the emergency care procedures for the person choking on food or other objects that shut off the airway."

In the same issue, Heimlich reports that each year 3,900 healthy persons are known to strangle in the United States because of food stuck in their throats.

This is how the Heimlich manoeuvre is performed:

—Stand behind the victim who is choking and wrap your arms around his waist.

—Grasp your fist with your other hand and place the thumb side of your fist against the victim's abdomen, slightly above the navel and below the rib cage.

—Press your fist into the victim's abdomen with a quick upward thrust, repeating several times if necessary until the food or other object is expelled.

By MICHAEL LAMM

Dear Mike: I've had my 1973 Nova tuned twice this year, and I'm getting 14.3 mpg (for the last 200 miles of city driving). A friend with a 1973 Duster gets over 18 mpg in town. What can I do to up my mileage?

GUZZLER

Dear Guz: First, you can't compare cars without comparing engines, rear-axle ratios and drivers. It might be that you and your friend could swap cars for a week and get exactly the same mileages you're getting now, even with each other's cars. I'd say 14.3 mpg from your Nova isn't bad for city driving, especially if you've got a V-8 with automatic.

★ ★ ★

Dear Mike: I'm having trouble starting my 1966 Jeep Wagoneer. Sometimes there's no juice to the starter. I've had the starter motor overhauled and had a new neutral switch installed. Several mechanics have tried to fix the problem, but no luck so far. One garage did hook a wire to one of the starter terminals. Now, when it won't start, I simply touch the wire to the positive post on the battery and it cranks right up. Any suggestions?

NO SPARK

Dear No: Sounds like a weak solenoid or a bad ignition switch.

★ ★ ★

Dear Mike: My 1970 Plymouth Six often stalls whenever I brake for a red light. This happens only when the engine is warm, never when it's cold. I can drive any speed and everything's fine until I have to stop. The engine starts right back up again and idles okay. Hope you can tell me what's wrong.

DYING

Dear Dying: Your carburetor float might be maladjusted; your carb could be set too lean; your idle speed might simply be set too low. Have a good carburetor man check.

★ ★ ★

Dear Mike: Nobody can figure this one out. Over the last year, I've had four defective tire valves on my 1968 Impala. One valve blew on a new tire, and then three developed slow leaks. These have all been on rear tires.

DEFLATED

Dear Dee: The stem holes in your wheels might have burrs on them. Try metal valve stems that screw in — the type used with mag wheels. Clean up any burrs you find.

dear abby

Got It Made, But...

DEAR ABBY: I'm nobody's fool, but this is going to sound like a foolish letter.

I'm 31, have two sons and have been divorced twice. I am a beautiful woman with a home in the country and many friends, and everybody thinks I've got the world by the tail.

They should only know how miserable I am.

I recently met a man who seems interested in me, but he's very bashful. He stops by, eats and plays with my boys, but he never stays long.

He's married but says he wishes he weren't. No children. He's a big rugged cowboy and looks like George Montgomery—Dinah Shore's "ex."

Abby, I've dated lots of men in my life, but this is the only one I really want.

I have never messed with a married man and vowed I wouldn't, but he isn't happy, there are no children involved and I truly think he cares for me.

Should I go after him, throw my body at him, or forget it and keep daydreaming? I've never felt like this about a man with whom I've never even been intimate.

What I want from you is a yes or "go-ahead sign" to clear my conscience. I really want this man.—NAMELESS.

DEAR NAMELESS: If he wanted you as much as you want him, he'd do something about it. He's married and strictly off limits. With all you have going for you, you should be able to rope a nice single man.

DEAR ABBY: My husband has been dead for six years. We had a wonderful marriage in every way. Our daughter, now 16, misses her father almost as much as I do. She and I have always had a very close and loving relationship.

About six months ago, I met Manny and we were attracted to each other immediately. He was at my home for dinner one night last week. One thing led to another, and he ended up spending the night in my bedroom.

My daughter came home from a date and saw Manny "spending the night" with me. She ran crying to her room and locked herself in. A few days later, she told me she "hated" Manny, and she's been very cool and distant to me ever since.

Did she expect me to be loyal to her father forever?

Abby, I am 39 and only human. Should I break up with Manny just to make my daughter happy?—ONLY HUMAN

DEAR ONLY: Admittedly, we are all only human, but when a daughter discovers her mother's feet of clay, mother usually winds up as "mud."

I doubt if breaking up with Manny will make your daughter "happy." In time, she may understand that mothers have needs, too, but your lack of discretion netted you (and Manny) some well-deserved criticism.

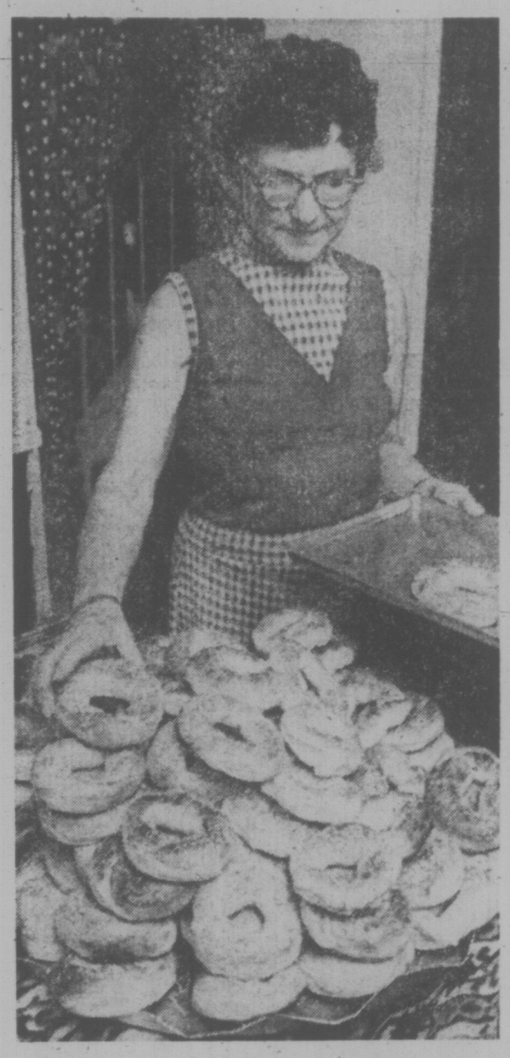
Unbalanced Few Spoil Fun



It's a sad commentary on our present day way of life when parents begin to say the safest thing to do is keep their youngsters off the streets on Halloween.

The incidence of lethal bits of metal in various fruits, intestinal purge powder in candies and other strange things that sick minds dredge up, has brought many to this way of thinking.

There is also the growing antics of teen-age louts who gang up to harass smaller children and in some instances, even older citizens who open their doors and welcome the young of all ages in the traditional way, on this one night of the year.

Looking back I cannot remember a time when ghosts and goblins and witches haven't added to the excitement of Halloween, as children go from door to door collecting goodies.

People prepare for these visitations. In fact, many look forward to welcoming the boys and girls who often sing, dance or recite as part of the "trick-or-treat" ritual.

It will be a shame therefore, if we allow a few unbalanced people and hoodlum gangs, with poison in their souls and mayhem in their minds, to spoil the fun.

Parents could do much to mitigate the chance of misadventure, not by keeping their young at home but rather by following a few sensible precautions.

These precautions are repeated each year as Hallowe'en looms on the horizon, by the police, in newspapers and over the air.

Here are two that definitely should be followed:

—Instruct your children to bring their "loot" home before they eat anything. Once it's inside your door, inspect every item thoroughly. Foreign objects have turned up in the most innocent items . . . and most injuries could be avoided through inspection.

—Adults should accompany very young children as they make their rounds. It is also a good idea for an adult or a responsible teen-ager to accompany boys and girls up to 10 or 12 years of age.

Other dangers that crop up at Halloween have nothing to do with unbalanced minds or turned-on youth, but rather with the thoughtlessness of grown-ups.

In my files I have a magazine clipping saved from a year or so ago that pinpoints some of these dangers with well set out suggestions for sensible precautions. Here they are:

—Make-up straight out of mother's cosmetic case is preferable to a mask. Rouge, lipstick and eye-brow pencil can create magic. Remember though, young children's skins are sensitive and cream should be applied before any make-up.

—If however, a mask is necessary for the costume, be careful that it doesn't limit the child's vision in any way —an enormous nose, tiny slits for eyes, too large a mask that slips down over a child's face, can make it difficult for a child to see.

—Costumes for all children should be made of fluorescent or light-colored materials. If the costume material is not fluorescent, it would be wise to attach a few strips of fluorescent tape to it.

elizabeth forbes

—Halloween night can be chilly. It could even be raining. Make sure your child is warmly dressed under the costume. Don't take the chance of ending up with a house full of sniffly colds.

—Teach your children the rules of the road, and urge them to obey them rigidly. Often in the excitement of the evening, children forget to follow the most basic traffic laws unless they are reminded, over and over again.

Trick and treating on Halloween rates second only to Christmas in the hearts of the young.

If adults would follow sensible rules explicitly it would go a long way to keeping the night when ghosts and goblins and witches are abroad, from becoming a night of horror in which children have to be kept indoors and denied the fun.

Doctors Caution on Sugar

CHICAGO (AP) — Feeding your sweet tooth may ruin your body as well as your teeth, three nutrition authorities said Sunday.

Dr. Frederic Nordseik of New York said that sugar provides nothing to human nutrition but calories, and he and the others who presented papers at the annual meeting of the American Dental Association said that sugar can be a health hazard.

Dr. Nordsiek said the average American consumes more than two pounds of sugar a week.

Two-thirds of that amount is hidden in commercially processed and prepared foods such as jellies, fruits, cakes, candies and beverages, he said.

About 1830, the average American consumed 15 pounds of sugar a year, compared to more than 100 pounds today, said Dr. Nordseik, adding that even now people in some parts of the world eat no sugar.

Dr. Richard August Ahrens, a nutritionist at the University of Maryland reported that high levels of sugar consumption have been shown to raise the blood pressure of both experimental animals and humans.

He said: "high blood pressure affects all of the organs of the body that have to work against it." It is, he said, a major cause of heart disease, stroke, diabetes and kidney disease.

Controversy Expected On UIC Overhaul Bill

OTTAWA (CP) — The commons begins debate today on a bill that could prove almost as controversial as the government' new anti-inflation legislation.

Legislation to overhaul the country's unemployment insurance system will come up for second reading, giving MPs a chance to open up on the government's record on employment.

It will be the first chance for MPs to speak on the measure since it was introduced and given routine first reading in July.

The bill, which proposes higher unemployment insurance premiums and new restrictions to reduce benefits paid out, already has been rejected by the NDP and criticized by the progressive Conservatives.

NDP Leader Ed Broadbent said before Parliament reconvened Oct. 14 that his party would wage in all-out battle against the bill.

Conservative House Leader Gerald Baldwin said Friday his party also has "a number of major objections to the bill.

"Some sections won't be conducive to workers or conducive to society if they are passed without amendment," he said in an interview.

The proposed changes, originally announced in the June 23 budget, would raise worker premiums to between $1.60 and $1.70 for every $100 of earnings from the current rate of $140.

For employers, the rate would to go between $2.25 and $2.40 from $1.96.

Other changes would cut off persons 65 or older from paying or receiving benefits, double the existing three-week disqualification period for those who are fired or quit jobs without just cause, and reduce the special benefit level for claimants with dependents.

'EXTINCT' STORK FOUND

TIENTSIN, China (Reuter) — A British ornithologist has discovered an "extinct" stork alive in a small zoo here.

The eastern white stork—the Asian relative of the bird that nests on the chimney pots of Europe—had not been seen for years and experts thought the species had died out.

Rumors that an eastern stork was in Tientsin zoo reached the Smithsonian Museum in Washington. It asked British diplomat John Gerson, an ornithologist, to check.

Gerson found the stork, which is larger than its European cousin, and has a black beak, wandering among the cranes and pelicans in the zoo's bird house.

Chinese officials told him the stork still nests in small numbers in northeast China, migrating south each year.

Phoney Air Fare Scheme

BOSTON (Reuter) — A nationwide multi-million-dollar stolen airlines ticket scheme is being investigated by the FBI and state police, law enforcement officials said Sunday.

Police have charged Matthieu Ray Norris, 35, formerly of Berkeley, Calif., with grand larceny, receiving stolen goods and other offences. He was being held in lieu of $50,000 bail at Suffolk County Jail.

Law enforcement officials said Norris was implicated in possibly the biggest operation of its kind ever uncovered in the United States. It involved the forging of tickets stolen from domestic airline offices.

When he was arrested on Sept. 24 in a suburban Brookline, Mass., apartment, he was alleged to be in possession of an estimated $3 million worth of stolen tickets.

Officials said the FBI has been investigating the sale of bogus airline tickets in the U.S. for at least three years.

Police Protest Execution Stay

CALGARY (CP) — About 50 uniformed city policemen and 30 prison guards marched through downtown streets Sunday to a rally in Memorial Park to protest the federal cabinet's decision to abolish capital punishment.

The protest was sparked by a recent cabinet move to stay the execution of convicted murderer Rene Viallancourt who was scheduled to hang at the end of this month.

Viallancourt, waiting execution for about two years, was convicted of the murder of Toronto policeman Leslie Maitland in 1973.

To dramatize the number of policemen and prison guards killed in recent years, the demonstrators included the names of slain policemen and guards in a roll call.

When the name of a murdered officer such as Maitland was called, a member of the Calgary City Police responded: "Maitland isn't present today, he was shot and killed while aprehending a bank robber in Toronto."

John McFadden, the rally organizer, said the event was held to express concern over the possible commutation of Viallancourt's sentence.

"Policemen across the country would be very upset that this man may be walking the streets in 10 to 15 years."

Frank McDonald, police association president, said policountry would be every upset cemen, as members of the public, had a right to speak out on social issues.

A crowd of about 250 people, including the demonstrators applauded when he said policemen had not only a right "but a duty to speak out when something is wrong with law reform in the country."

He added no one has been executed in Canada since 1962 although the criminal code provided the death penalty for persons convicted of killing police officers or prison guards.

MacDonald said the penalty should apply to everybody.

Rich Widow Held Captive

LYON

NEW ORLEANS — Police say Edna Halbedel, an 83-year-old wealthy widow, was kept heavily sedated in a locked room in her home for two years by two men, one of whom was the sole beneficiary in her will.

Firemen ended her confinement by breaking through a window in her French Quarter home, on a tip from a family friend who became suspicious because she was not allowed to see Mrs. Halbedel.

She was hospitalized and reported in fair condition Sunday.

Authorities still had many unanswwered questions about the alleged conspiracy to keep the woman prisoner in her own home.

"It's going to be pretty horrible when it's all revealed," said a spokesman for the district attorney's office. "There are some doctors involved in this thing. They just had her all doped up in this room — no visitors or phone calls or anything."

John Villarrubia, 42, a publicity agent named in Mrs. Halbedel's will, and Noel Dube, 44, a school teacher, were arrested and charged with aggravated kidnapping. Their bonds were set at $200,000 each.

Honor Award of the Royal Life Saving Society of Canada was presented by Saanich Mayor Ed Lum to Gary Lyon of 757 Lily on Friday.

Lyon saved the life of five-year-old Christopher Magineley of 993 Admirals on June 30, 1973, when he applied external cardiac massage after the boy had been rescued following a fall into the waters of Esquimalt Harbor.

TAKIS

LYNNWOOD, Wash. — Goldfish are easiest to swallow if they go down head first and still alive, says 18-year-old George Takins, who set a new world goldfish-eating record Saturday.

Takis, who trained several days in advance of the feat by chomping down raw eggs, shells and all, gulped 507 fish in four hours.

Takis said he began to taste victory after he had tasted about 200 goldfish.

LONDON — A man on the third floor balcony of a burning hotel pushed aside a firemen's rescue ladder and plunged to his death Sunday.

The victim, a 35-year-old man from Afghanistan, appeared on the balcony as flames began to spread in his room at the Kensington Towers Hotel in Bayswater.

He stood there for more than 10 minutes shouting to the crowd. But when firemen arrived and began to climb a ladder to him, he pushed the ladder and jumped.

NEW YORK — Former heavyweight boxing champion Jack Dempsey was reported in "satisfactory" condition Sunday at New York University Medical Centre.

The hospital has declined to divulge the nature of Dempsey's illness.

LONDON — Princess Anne's horse collided with her husband's horse during a race Sunday, and she was knocked to the ground but not hurt.

Daredevil Evel Knievel flies through the air

KINGS HILLS, Ohio (AP) — Daredevil Evel Knievel guided a red-white-and-blue motorcycle to his longest jump ever, vaulting 150 feet over 14 passenger buses Saturday in a performance that was on television across the United States.

After two practice runs, the 37-year-old former hockey player and rodeo rider sailed off a 300-foot ramp, the motorcycle almost upright as it cleared the buses. The rear wheel bounced off the last bus as Knievel brought the motorcycle down and zoomed out of the arena at Kings Island Amusement Park with a crowd of 35,800 cheering and rising for a standing ovation.

DEFORMED BOY'S PARENTS SUE

THETFORD MINES, Que. (QP) — The parents of a deformed child have launched a $143,000 suit against a local chiropractor who they say prescribed treatments of cabbage- leaf poultices, electric shocks and injections to cure their son's oversized head.

In their Quebec Superior Court action, Pierre and Jeannine Tardiff, of nearby Leeds Village, said chiropractor John Laverriere led them to believe that wrapping their son's head in boiled cabbage leaves at night would drain off the fluid causing the deformity.

Since his birth in 1963, the boy's head has grown to the size of a large watermelon. The treatment recommended by Laverriere during a seven-year period did irreparable harm to the boy's condition, the suit contends.

The condition, hydrocephalus, commonly known as "water on the brain," has almost totally disabled the 12-year-old boy and badly impairs his vision, the suit says.

During testimony before Justice Antoine Lacoursiere this week, Mrs. Tardiff told the court her son attended school until a serious epileptic seizure in 1971.

Laverriere then treated the boy with electric shocks which she said left burns the size of 50 cent pieces on his chest.

She said the chiropractor told her to leave the child in a darkened room to help him recover from fits. Laverriere denied this, saying: "I wouldn't do that to a dog."

Mrs. Tardiff testified Laverriere had given her son regular injections but the chiropractor said he had given the boy only one — an injection of vitamin B-12.

ICBC ARRANGES TO BYPASS MAIL

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Insurance Corporation of British Columbia says in a news release that vehicle owners who make claims should take their appointment cards to any Motor Vehicle Branch, Autoplan agent or ICBC sales office, instead of mailing during the the national postal strike.

The corporation said it has made arrangements to pick up appointment cards and deliver them to the appropriate claim centre.

The appointment system is still in effect and owners filling out the cards should indicate which claim centre they want to use.

Cards are available at Motor Vehicle Branches, Autoplan agents offices or ICBC sales offices.

Raves For Riel In U.S.

WASHINGTON (CP) — The Canadian Opera Company's production of Louis Riel opened to its first engagement outside Canada here last week and local critics have termed it "an artistic success," calling its musical score "one of the most imaginative and powerful . . . to have been written in this century."

The opera, written for the Canadian centennial in 1967 by Harry Somers to a text by fellow Torontonian Mayor Moore, is being performed at the John F. Kennedy Centre for Performing Arts as part of Canada's cultural salute to the United States independence bicentennial. "The libretto, alternatively in English and French, is a masterpiece," says The Star in its praise of the work's music. "The resources required for the opera are enormous.

"Its use of projections, sound amplified through four speakers placed around the theatre, and its dramatic staging all combine to create both accuracy and tension in telling one of Canada's historic conflicts," says The Post.

"The music, opening rather heavily, becomes sufficiently flexible to underscore the growing tragedy," it adds. "Out of a large cast of notable strengths, there is towering singing and acting in Bernard Turgeon's Riel. As his wife, Marguerite, Roxolana Roslak sings a long, unaccompanied lullaby which she turns into a tour de force of astounding beauty."

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

In the National Mens Pairs Championship of 1975, during the fourth round of play, one of the players called out: "Director!" When the director came over, the caller said: "I don't think it's proper, in a National Tournament, for a player to call me a 'dumb S.O.B.'"

The director looked at both of the opponents and inquired: "Which one of you said it?" The caller then interfered: "It wasn't either of them. It was my partner."

In the deal that follows, which was played in a national championship event some years ago, North could not have been criticized if he had called south a dirty name, for South's play — considering that he was presumably an expert — left much to be desired.

* * *

Neither side vulnerable. South deals.

	NORTH ♠A9763 ♥53 ♦64 ♣Q763
WEST ♠QJ ♥KQ864 ♦A872 ♣94		EAST ♠4 ♥10972 ♦QJ1095 ♣K108
	SOUTH ♠K10852 ♥AJ ♦K3 ♣AJ52

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1♠	Pass	2♠	Pass
3♠	Pass	4♠	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: King of ♥.

After winning the opening heart lead with his ace, declarer cashed the king and ace of trumps .Next came a low club, South finessing his jack successfully, He then cashed the ace of clubs, and followed up by making a third club lead, which East won with the king, East shifted to the queen of diamonds, which South covered with the king. Upon winning the trick with his ace, West cashed the heart queen, and and then led a diamond to East's nine. Thus South incurred a one-trick set, losing a club, a heart, and two diamonds.

After South had finessed his jack of clubs successfully, and next played the ace of clubs (at trick five), he made a mistake when he then made a third club lead.

When the king of clubs failed to fall on the second club lead, South knew that East was the possessor of the only adversely held club, the king. He also knew, from the very beginning, that West, who had led the king of hearts, had the heart queen.

Instead of making a third club lead, South should have led the heart jack, putting West into the lead. If West returned a heart, it would be ruffled in dummy as South discarded his three of diamonds. And if, instead, West led a diamond, South's king would become a winner. Later on, South could always create a club winner by conceding a club trick to East's king.

Tom was checking the invoice. "Talk of inflation," he exclaimed, pointing to one entry. "Remember? We bought one 10 years ago. Now it's three times what it was."

"Worse than that!" Ken chuckled. "It's actually one cent more than three times. But that's funny. If you switch the dollars and cents of what it was you get its price now."

Of course he meant "interchange." What was the old price?

Indoor Plants for Apartments

Plants to grow indoors where sunlight is unavailable are not to numerous but fortunately for apartment dwellers, they do exist.

We know very well that some apartment windows are limited to a northern light, and no amount of wishing will change the fact that only for a brief period around the longest day will sunlight enter at sunrise and again at sunset.

When green living plants are wanted for porth facing windows, the mental adjustment must first be made to accepting foliage plants instead of the popular "masses of flowers." The flowers will be incidental, not the feature.

As one lives with foliage of various kinds it becomes evident that all leaves are not the same, in spite of plant descriptions which so often begin with "it has green leaves."

What could be more striking than the difference between leaves of the old Aspidestra lurida and the relatively new Dizygotheca elegantissima? Indeed the whole appearance of each plant makes a striking contrast to the other. Dieffenbachia is a contrast to both.

The dieffenbachia is well known in homes now. It does well in the warmth of today's homes and will take the northern light. Root rot is the main problem with this plant, but it only occurs when overwatered. The soil should be on the dry side before more water is given.

Keep the leaves away from pets and young children; even one bite causes painful swelling of tongue, lips and throat, causing great difficulty in breathing and swallowing.

Aspidistra was the "parlor-palm" of the 19th century British homes. It thrived in the curtained, cool and draughty bay-fronted windows without deterioration. Indeed, plants became heirlooms, passed down with the furniture to younger generations.

Today, sponged of their dust and displayed in the stronger light of uncurtained Canadian homes, some of these same plants are decidedly handsome with their large deep green shining leaves rising directly from the soil. They don't become "tall." We even see the occasional lurid flower emerge at soil level. Star shaped, hairy and purplish, it is well worth studying through a hand lens.

A comparative newcomer to Canadian homes, Dizygotheca elegantissima is as elegant as its name. Several common names are used by retailers though misleading to the people who buy and then wish to find details of culture to grow them.

The leaves grow from a slender central stem which reaches three to four feet indoors and 25 feet in its native New Hebrides. Ten slender leaflets form each leaf, the whole outline of the plant repeating this airy arrangement. The coppery red color is in delightful contrast to the solid green of the aspidistra.

This is a semi tropical, the reason no doubt why it hasn't appeared as an indoor plant until overheated homes became popular. Dizygotheca likes warmth and will lose its leaves if exposed to draught either hot or cold.

To keep the hard-to-describe leaf color, the strong light of a north window is needed. Don't put it in a dull corner.

The few hours of sun available during the longest days in summer will aid in keeping the plant healthy. Don't let this one become dry at the roots; always slightly damp but not soggy is the theme for this plant.

Having only north facing windows for plants means more appreciation for foliage and less focus on flowers. You get a deeper knowledge of leaf formation, color, venation and placement on the various plants by observing without the distraction of colorful flowers.

HOW TO WRITE A GOOD CLASSIFIED ACTION AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room etc., for rent, or property for sale; start your ad with the location.

2—BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably when given complete, definite information. Always include the price in your advertisement.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public.

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.
Don't allow the reader to speculate.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you have to offer; the details and information you give are the most important.

7—WANT ADS THAT FAIL TO bring the desired results do so usually, not through a lack of readership, but because they are poorly worded or contain inadequate information.

8—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient advisor will be glad to help you word and place your order. And remember, Classified Action Ads afford you the most complete coverage. Telephones are open 8:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. for you daily, Monday through Saturday call:

U.K. Seeks To Reduce Oil Deficit

LONDON (AP(— Trade Minister Peter Shore says Britain would have a healthy surplus in its foreign-trade account if it did not have to import oil.

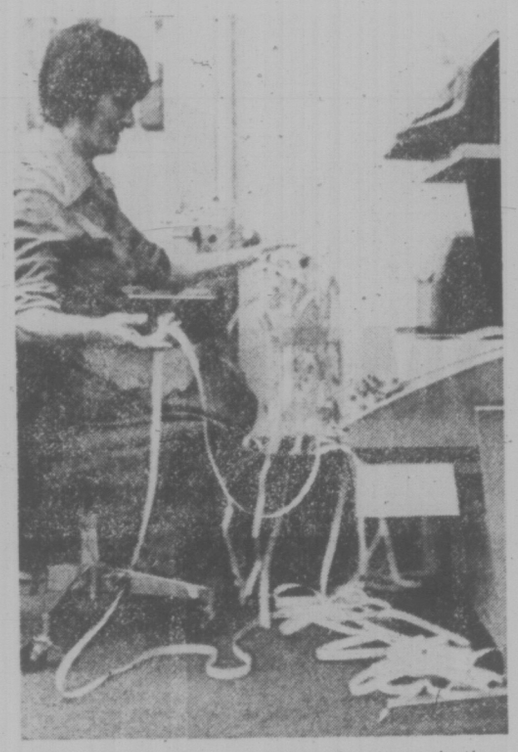
"Our non-oil deficit has certainly been overcome," said Shore, whose job is to bring about an export boom. "And I expect to reduce the oil deficit too by virtue of our own production next year."

In an interview with The Associated Press, Shore said he expects 105 million barrels of North Sea oil, or 15 per cent of the country's current yearly needs, to be landed in 1976.

Officials in the department of energy think the inflow may reach 140 million barrels. Thus $1.2 billion to $1.6 billion might be knocked off Britain's total fuel import bill, which this year is likely to be about $5 billion.

The government has predicted self-sufficiency in oil by 1980 with a production of 700 million to 910 million barrels a year.

Yet Shore expressed caution as he suggested Britain may at last be emerging from the economic doldrums of the post-war years.



ALL TAPED UP at CP-CN Telecommunications office on Fort Street is teletype operator Mary Osborne. Lasers Now Used To Detect Cancer

BOSTON (AP) — Scientists say a new laser light system for identifying cancer cells is faster and perhaps more accurate than the familiar Pap smear test.

The new system, which distinguishes between the light patterns of normal and abnormal cells when the laser beam shines through them, may prove even more useful in rapidly identifying types of white blood cells, the researchers say.

Different kinds of white cells fight certain kinds of infections. A quick cell test can help doctors make hour-by-hour checks on how a person is doing warding off an infection, they said.

Scientists from the Los Alamos Scientific Laboratory in New Mexico described their system in a paper delivered here at the annual meeting of the Optical Society of America.

Dr. Gary Salzman of the laboratory's biophysics and instrument group said the system has been used successfully in detecting cervical and vaginal cancer in laboratory testing.

Since all kinds of cells scatter light differently to form distinct patterns or "signatures," a catalogue of light patterns can be stored in a computer for instant comparison and identification of new samples, he said.

The new system works by passing cells in a saline solution through a plastic tube at a rate of 60,000 cells a minute. As each cell progresses individually through the flow chamber, it is struck by a low-power laster beam and the light is scattered.

A detector system converts the scatter pattern to electrical signals which are stored in a computer memory for comparison with similar cell types.

Dr. Salzman said initial tests of 40 cell samples taken from women, which compared the experimental laser-computer method with the Pap smear test, showed "the accuracy of our system is quite consistent with that of the Pap smear in detecting cancer cells and we think it will prove to be better."

The system must undergo further testing and is at least two years away from manufacture, he said.

Model Plane Flies To Gauge Pollution

HOUSTON (WP) — Two model airplanes since they were children have developed a weapon in Harris County's fight against industrial air polluters.

It weights just over 10 pounds, has a 69-inch wing span and can fly right into the plume above a smokestack, its creators said. "I can start the motor, put the plane in the air, draw a sample and have it landed and back in my truck in five minutres," reported James D. Joseph, 33, a chemist and heavy metals analysts in the county's pollution-control department.

Joseph conceived the idea about a year ago. He and a friend, John W. Eaton, 28, who operates a model shop, built the modified radio-controlled plane from a kit.

Dr. Watler W. Quebedeaux, county pollution control director, said the plane's sampling methods will meet all court tests. He said he plans to write a $1,200 to $2,400 item into his 1976 budget request to contract with the men to operate their plane for the country starting in January.

"There no better way of collecting air samples," said Quebedeaux. Stack samples usually are taken by factory and county authorities' from one-third of the way down, he said, "and don't necessarily prove what got into the public jurisdiction." Helicopters are impractical for plume samples because their downdraft dissipates the smoke, and full-sized airplanes are prohibited by Federal Aviation Administration rules from getting within 1,100 feet of any ground-based tower or other protrusion.

In contrast, Joseph said, his miniplane can get directly into the plume within 25 yards of the stack.

Sampling by the miniplane could come as a "complete surprise," to factories, Joseph claimed. The plane has "a muffler and you can't even hear it when it gets over a plant," he said.

Joseph and Eaton said they spent $400 and more than 1,000 hours in their spare time developing the plane, more than 300 hours of that on the present model. They are now working on a model that can take samples at night because Quebedeaux suspects that some local factories "cut off their (pollution) control equipment at night to save electricity."

The plane carries a battery-operated vacuum pump that sucks air samples at a fixed rate (2.5 litres per minute) through either a filter case or another separation technique, a gas chromatograph tube inserted in the wings. The two methods capture virtually all air pollutants, Quebedeaux said.

Quebedeaux said there are no legal prohibitions to flying above a factory, although the plane's owner should be insured in case it crashes. He added the California Highway Department has used a model plane to sample ozone, carbon monoxide and hydrocarbons above freeways.

Poultry Plant Bought

ABBOTSFORD (CP) — The owner of the Maple Wood poultry plant in Victoria said Friday he has bought the Willows poultry processing plant from Canada Packers for more than $500,000.

Brian Hambley said the plant will re-open early in December and 110 members of the Canadian Food and Allied Workers Union will be rehired under the same contract they had when the plant closed 10 months ago.

He said the operation will undergo more than $300,000 in renovations.

The re-opening comes "inspite of the provincial government's apparent desire to see no competition for its two plants," Hambley said.

He said he was twice refused a government-guaranteed loan under the farm products improvement act for secondary farm industry. The government owns one poultry company and 40 per cent of another. The Willows operation will be able to handle about 12 million pounds of poultry meat a year.

Mr. Hambley said the purchase comes in the midst of a poultry processing study ordered by the department of agriculture after the provincial turkey marketing board said the two provincial plants could not handle all the fowl produced in the province.

THE GALA BALL OF THE SEASON

Apparel may proclaim the man but that wasn't the case at the Empress Hotel on Saturday night — the occasion of the annual drag queen's ball.

No one was quite sure what all those long lashes, panty hose, flounces and frills really proclaimed — other than some men's expression that they are emancipated enough to dress up like women.

One transvestite trilled that it was the gala ball of the season.

After all, a highlight was the crowning of a new queen.

The ball, organized by the Royal Victorian Society drew a crowd of 200 — presumably all-male.

Empress assistant manager Don Wakelin, noting there were similar events being held throughout North America, said the ball wasn't objectionable as far as the hotel was concerned.

"It was well-run and organized," he said. "Everyone seemed to have a good time and they gave us no trouble."

1,546 Viets Return

SAIGON (UPI) — A spokesman for South Vietnam's Provisional Revolutionary Government said Sunday his government has accepted 1,546 Vietnamese refugees repatriated from the United States and Guam.

The spokesman, however, gave no details of the preparations for the refugees' landing from the ship Thuong Tin, which sailed from Guam Oct. 16 without permission from the PRG and against the advise of the U.N. high commission for refugees.

According to some reports, the ship has entered Vietnam waters south of Saigon.

The South Vietnamese spokesman said the decision to permit the return of the refugees was based on "humanitarian reasons."

He said other refugees evacuated by the United States at the height of the Vietnam war in April must apply for their return and each application would be dealt with separately.

Inquiry Urged

MINCOME UP 13%

The $15.18 Mincome increase announced Friday by Premier Dave Barrett for Jan. 1 means the elderly and handicapped in British Columbia will have received an 13.18 per cent income increase in one year.

The latest increase, designed to help persons on fixed incomes fight inflation, will bring the monthly Mincome payment to $265. The rate paid on Jan. 1 this year was $234.13, a difference of $30.87.

Couples received double payment, so they will be paid a total of $530 a month.

Barrett's announcement follows by only three weeks the latest cost-of-living increase in Mincome, which increased to $249.82 on Oct. 1. Including the new raise, pensioners will have been given four increases during the year.

Foreign Aid Hits $1B Mark

CALGARY (CP) — Canada's economic aid to poor countries has increased to $1 billion this year from $300 million in 1970, an official with the Canadian International Development Agency (CIDA) says.

However, Canada still has to reach the target of aid set by the United Nations, said Romeo Maione of Ottawa, director of CIDA's non-governmental Organizaeions division.

"The United Nations has set a target of 0.7 per cent of the GNP (Gross National Product) as the economic aid from a developed country and Canada's current aid represents 0.6 per cent of its GNP," he said in an interview.

Maione, who co-ordinates Canada's aid programs by non-governmental organizations, said it is hoped that Canada can reach the UN target by 1978.

While Canada "is not as generous to the poor countries" as Sweden, Norway and France which have already met the UN target, Maione said in comparison the United States is only giving 0.2 per cent of its GNP as economic aid to the developing countries.

"The U.S. aid program looked quite impressive but a few years ago UN decided to separate military aid from economic aid so as not to confuse the picture."

Reporter Censured By Council

QUEBEC (CP) — The Quebec press council censured a former freelance reporter and the Montreal Gazette Friday for a story last Dec. 19 which accused a Liberal member of the National Assembly of an apparent conflict of interest.

The council's written ruling found reoorter Ralph Noseworthy had been negligent and "showed a serious disregard of professional ethics" in not fully exploring all possible sources to confirm this story.

"The council denounces just as strongly that attitude of those in charge of news media who publish information that hasn't been sufficiently verified and who do not take into account the public impact such actions can have on the reputation of individuals," as was the case with the Gazette," the ruling said.

The story said Robert Malouin, MNA for Drummondville, was implicated in an alleged conflict of interest for sitting as an assembly member while acting as president of an engineering firm which had received at least $1 million in Quebec government contracts.

The Gazette published a retraction March 6. The press council said such retractions, while necessary, "do little to repair fully in public the harm done in public to reputations which are unfairly attacked."

The press council found that the reporter had telephoned Malouin the day before the story was published. In the telephone conversation, Malouin said that he had divested himself of his interests in the engineering firm Oct. 4, 1973, almost a month before his election to the assembly.

'...PUT A FEW IN JAIL'

TORONTO (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau, asked Sunday about possible refusal by some unions to support new federal wage and price controls, said mockingly:

"We'll put a few union leaders . . . in jail for three years and the others will get the message."

During the show, Let's Discuss It, broadcast on CFRB, Trudeau said:

"We'll have to keep authoritarian forms around longer" if Canadians are not prepared to practise self-restraint.

Also in Toronto on the weekend, Finance Minister Donald Macdonald said Ottawa may drop its proposed freeze on stock dividends, as a result of public criticism.

Macdonald told a meeting of Toronto Liberals that the dividend-freeze proposal, part of the government's anti-inflation program, may be changed.

"We realize the difficulties of the dividend problem and we will be re-examining this within the context of the guidelines," he said.

Private Mail Service Launched for B.C.

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

A British Columbia-wide private mail service was launched in Victoria today with the first delivery to business firms starting Tuesday and for homes beginning Friday.

The service to 14 B.C. cities is being organized in Victoria by retired businessman George Ferguson, who is hiring hundreds of people, mainly striking postal workers.

"There could be thousands of workers involved and hundreds of thousands of pieces of mail — if the strike continues," he said.

B.C. headquarters at the moment is the lobby of the Ingraham Hotel, where mail is dropped into plastic bags. It will be sorted in a hotel room. From there it is either delivered in Victoria or transported to some other B.C. point.

'Not Strike-Breaking'

"A large number of postal workers from around the provinces are phoning in asking for jobs," he said.

"I do not consider this to be strike-beaking on my part because they are volunteering to work. They want to make some money."

The money is by piecework. Mail sorters will get five cents a letter while carriers get 10 cents a letter for delivery.

Mail deliveries will begin in Greater Victoria and Vancouver Tuesday for stores only. It will be Friday before the first mail delivery to homes is organized in B.C.

A spokesman for the Canadian Union of Postal Workers said today the union won't stand in the way of workers who want to get money by working for the new service.

Stan Darlington said most of the postal workers are in poor financial position as a result of low wages and "if they can get employment we wouldn't want to stand in their way."

"If they need the money we hope they're able to get some," he added.

It is questionable, however, whether the new service constitutes strike-breaking, Darlington said, and it may be contrary to the Post Office Act which provides that only the post-master general can deliver mail.

Sorting Rooms a Problem

The service will carry letters only — no parcels, no registered mail, nothing with cash or securities. The charge is 30 cents for each local letter and 50 cents for out-of-town mail.

"Organizing this hasn't been easy," Ferguson said.

"Most of the people involved will be postal workers because they are experienced in this type of work. But I will hire anyone who is interested."

Finding sorting rooms in each city is a major problem. This will be resolved before nightfall by accepting an offer from some real estate company that operates province-wide or from some other similar firm.

Cities already organized into the service are Greater Victoria, Greater Vancouver including New Westminster, Nanaimo, Kamloops, Kelowna, Penticton, Venon, Prince George, Prince Rupert, Dawson Creek, Nelson, Trail Salmon Arm.

"More cities will be added and, if this strike continues, we will move into other provinces as well," Ferguson said.

"I decided to go into this thing because I saw a need. I'm not going to pretend it was an act of charity on my part. I hope to make a lot of money out of this. But if the strike ends quickly I could lose a lot because I have already spent money on advertising.

"The main thing is somebody has to do this and I don't think they should charge a rip-off price. The chamber of commerce was talking about three dollars a letter — shouldn't cost that much.

Ferguson got experience in organizing deliveries as circulation manager of a newspaper in Prince George 15 years ago. Although he is officially retired, his wife operates West Bay Charter, an Esquimalt firm that leases fishing boats for sport fishing.

She is assisting him in the mail service venture.

The name of the service is BeCems, which stands for B.C. Emergency Mail Service.

"We are not planning to incorporate a company, however, because that would take at least two weeks and the strike might not last that long. It is difficult to organize a business when the whole thing could end at any moment."

HOW TO GRIPE

Starting Wednesday, newspapers throughout the province will carry notices detailing steps consumers and suppliers should take if they want to complain about price hikes, Consumer Services Minister Phyllis Young announced today.

The freeze became effective at 5 p.m. Friday and disallows any increases at the processing, wholesaling and retailing levels of sales in foods, beverages, prescription drugs, and proprietary and patent medicine. It does not apply to restaurant, farmer or fishermen sales and it expires Jan. 1, 1976.

Consumers who discover price increases are asked to first bring them to the attention of the seller, Young said.

If they get no satisfaction, forms will be included in the newspaper advertisement on which complaints can be made and forwarded to the consumers service department which is administering the program.

Because of the mail strike, forms should either be dropped off at one of the four consumer services regional offices, or government agents offices. Complaints can also be phoned in by calling the regional offices collect.

While the department will be relying on individual consumers, some government staff will be monitoring the prices of essential goods, said Young, and an additional and temporary staff of close to a dozen will be hired for the job.

Where the department does not get satisfaction from sellers, its enforcement branch will take court action under the summary conviction act, said Young, and fines will be up to a maximum of $500 or six months in jail or both.

If prices skyrocket on Jan. 1, when the freeze is lifted, it will be the job of the federal anti-inflation board to investigate, said the minister.

...Consumers will simply have to change their shoppping patterns if food shelves go bare as a result of B.C.'s 68-day price freeze, Consumers' Services Minister Phyllis Young said today.

The minister defended B.C's move to freeze all food, drug and energy prices, and said food chain should not allow shortages of products but if they do people will have to learn to shop around.

Premier Barrett said this morning food chain owners cannot "go on strike" and supermarkets will have to make sacrifices like every other sector of the economy.

"If supermarkets come crying for special attention then they are not doing the Canadian thing," he said.

Workers have to accept decreased wage earnings and thus, to be fair, food stores will have to accept lower prices, said Barrett, adding that B.C. is simply following the federal initiatives.

But, in Vancouver, federal Justice Minister Ron Basford said Sunday the B.C. government's price freeze on essential goods and services invites a sudden, wild increase in prices once the freeze is lifted Jan. 1.

The federal government will not oppose the freeze, Basford said, but he gave no indication it would consider taking specific action to protect consumers from any after-effects of the freeze — "that is a provincial matter."

Spokesman for Super Valu stores said Saturday the freeze on food prices will mean tremendous shortages because so many products are purchased from outside B.C. and stores will lose money if prices of those goods go up.

Barrett said the government considered that problem and therefore the freeze was kept to 68 days. But he said stores will simply have to make sacrifices to get around that problem.

Young said the statements of food chain operators are "an overreaction, bordering on irresponsibility."

March Clogs Port

MARRAKESH, Morocco (UPI) — The mobilization of Moroccans for a massive "march of peace" into Spanish Sahara has strengthened King Hassan II's hold on power, but has dislocated his nation's economy.

Businessmen said Sunday the march has clogged the port at Casablanca with arriving shipments, crippled some commuter bus service and caused partial food shortages.

But political observers said the march has brought the most fervent monarchist sentiment since Hassan's father, King Mohammed V, returned from exile 20 years ago to usher in Morocco's independence.

Hundreds of thousands of Moroccans gathered in vast tent cities, but Hassan held off signalling the start of the march after talks with UN Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim.

Waldheim conferred with the monarch in Marrakesh Sunday in hopes of defusing the "explosive" situation created by the threatened march of 350,000 unarmed civilians into the Spanish-ruled colony.

Mail Talks On Again

OTTAWA (UPI) — Postmaster-General Bryce Mackasey ordered government negotiators to resume talks today with postal workers who have been on strike for the past week.

Resumption of the talks, expected to begin at 2 p.m. EST, signalled the first break in the nationwide strike by 22,000 members of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers.

The postmaster-general, moving to break an impasse that has stalled efforts to resume negotiations, said issues could be taken up in any order desired.

Union officials charged the government had refused to bargain on non-economic matters until the CUPW had accepted a government wage offer. Macaksey denied lodging an ultimatum.

In a letter to the union, Mackasey said the government was setting forth a package of outstanding issues and that "items of the package can be discussed in any order desired."

There was no indication from CUPW officials of any immediate return to work but Mackasey's move was welcomed.

"It's about time," chief CUPW negotiator Jean-Claude Parrot said. "Now that the ultimatum is withdrawn perhaps we can proceed with normal bargaining."

He declined to speculate on the government's package offer: "I only hope his first proposals will show the same kind of flexibility we did in our last counter-proposals just before the strike started."

Beirut Fight Moves To 'No-Man's Land'

BEIRUT (WP) — Heavy fighting in a key sector of modern Beirut eased off Sunday night in [illegible] optimists hoped was compliance with yet another in a series of hitherto flouted cease-fires.

Militiamen of the right-wing Christian Phalange were pitted against invading left-wing Lebanese and Palestinian troops in what until Saturday morning had been a kind of no-mans-land in the elegant Kantari neighborhood.

But the spread of fighting to Kantari has apparently served as a trip wire for many Western embassies and businesses now reported planning for at least temporary evacuation of dependents and breadwinners whose jobs are not considered absolutely essential.

The main fighting was thought to have see-sawed as the attackers holding the high ground apparently first forced the Phalange off a "lip" of terrain in three key side streets. But judging by the din of battle, the Phalangists had fought their way back under cover of darkness to a midway point some 200 yards up the hills. It is there that the terrain levels out again.

It was not immediately clear whether the relative slackening of fighting was due to cabinet session and had agreement on the eighth cease-fire since the current bout of fighting erupted nearly seven weeks ago. At least 3,000 persons have been killed since the beginning of the fighting in April and the once-prosperous economy has come to a halt.

U.S. Plan to Invade Canada Found—56 Years Later

WASHINGTON (WP) — Fifty-six years after it was drawn up, a bizarre U.S. Army plan to invade Canada has been unearthed by a Midwest historian.

The plan — which was kept classified by the Army until last month — calls for defending the border along North Dakota and Montana by invading Canada's vast and barren Saskatchewan Province either by tank or on horseback backed by artillery support from huge cannon mounted on railway cars.

A supporting program of aerial photo-reconnaisance along the 500-mile border was scrapped when the Army Air Corps and the Corps of Engineers disagreed over who would pay for the cameras.

"I'm no military strategist," said Dr. Lawrence H. Larsen, who prevailed upon the Army to declassify the plan after it was discovered in the federal records centre in Kansas City last month, "but to me it looks ludicrous."

The plan, which includes an inch-thick stack of blueprints, maps, charts and letters, was created by the Corps of Engineers in 1919 after it was discovered that the United States had no provision for defending its land borders, Larsen said.

It lay moldering under its confidential seal until it was discovered by officials at the federal records centre in September and turned over to Larsen, who was looking for topics for students in his history class at the University of Missouri at Kansas City.

Among the Options A through G prepared by the corps' strategists was one, Larsen said, that involved retreating to below the Missouri River in the face of an advance from Canada.

Another option offered a pincer movement into Saskatchewan. The pincers were to meet somewhere on the prairie north of the border. "It appeared," said Larsen, "to be a pincer that closed on nowhere."

A spokesman for the Canadian Department of National Defence, who was informed this week of the plan's existence, paused several seconds in startled silence.

"I can categorically assure you," he said finally, "that we have never had any plans to invade the U.S. Furthermore, I'm pretty sure we've never prepared for an attack from your side."

A U.S. army spokesman at the Pentagon was more evasive. "If an attack were ever to take place across the Canadian border," said the spokesman, "the army is prepared to defend the country."

What, he was asked, would the army do today in the event of a land attack from the north? "I can't tell you that," the spokesman replied. "It's classified."

According to Larsen, the mainstay of the 1919 battle plan was the movement of huge cannon mounted on railway flatcars up to the Canadian border, presumably to lob shells at the prairie.

To prepare for this portion of the plan a major general in the War Department wrote to the Canadians politely asking for their maps of the area. The Canadians sent back six copies with the notation by J. E. Challfout, Canada's chief geographer, that sadly the maps were somewhat out of date and they'd do better when they caught up.

A Corps of Engineers officer in Kansas City detailed to prepare rail routes to the border dutifully noted in his report that there was little need to prepare for squeezing the guns through any tunnels on the great plains because none existed.

The plan, Larsen said, never revealed who the army thought would be crossing over from Canada. Nevertheless, he said it appeared that the North Dakota-Montana section was just part of an over-all border defence contingency plan.

Toronto Prices Sharply Lower

Volume by 2 p.m. shrank to 877,000 shares from 1.01 million at the same time Friday. Declines outnumbered advances 174 to 105 with 224 issues unchanged. Trading was halted at the opening in shares of Queenswear Canada Ltd. at the request of the company pending a decision by Quegroup Investments Ltd. on whether it will accept less than the required 350,000 shares of Queenswear under its $3.50-a-share offer. Queenswear said it is doubtful that the required number of shares will be deposited by Wednesday, the expiry date of the offer. Queenswear last traded at $3.05.

Trading resumed at the opening in shares of Ocelot Industries Ltd. after being halted about noon Friday pending announcement that the company has acquired all outstanding shares of South Eastern Pipeline Construction Ltd. and its subsidiary Kari Investments Ltd. The company also said it bought the assets of Jennings International Drilling, a division of PanCana Industries Ltd. of Calgary. Ocelot lost ½ to $8 on volume of 1,620 shares.

$25,000 Boost Given Greenpeace

A $25,000 matching grant for next year's Greenpeace anti-whaling expedition has been made by the B.C. government, project co-ordinator Bob Hunter announced Sunday in Victoria.

Hunter said the trip will cost a minimum of $100,000—about the same as this year's two-vessel voyage to disrupt Soviet whaling in the Pacific.

"Now we are concentrating on having one boat and we won't be into spending money on electronic equipment to communicate with the whales —because there aren't enough whales left," he said.

"We got a letter from (provincial secretary) Ernie Hall saying that the provincial government will match us dollar for money we raise up to $25,000 for ongoing Greenpeace activities," Hunter said in a dockside interview at Oak Bay Marina where his floating home — the 32-foot former provincial police boat Astral—was berthed at the weekend.

The Greenpeace Foundation plans to buy a boat capable of 20 knots (to keep up with the Soviets) for resale after the expedition.

The foundation has also put together a color slide and movie package with sound on this year's 84-day voyage. The show will be presented to the Victoria public in December at a location to be announced.

"We've been promised a letter by (education minister) Eileen Dailly allowing us to go into all the schools with this presentation," said Hunter. "In it, you see Zodiaks (rubber rafts) among the whaling boats and you see the harpoon flying through the air and the whales fleeing for their lives and the operation on the factory ships . . ."

Hunter said the program will give continuity to the Greenpeace story, showing the actual confrontation, instead of "just a few shots of people playing music to whales; chaser boats and dead whales."

Next year, with a faster boat, the Greenpeace crew might get rougher treatment from the whalers, the former Vancouver Sun columnist said.

"We're going to insist on use of flak jackets and safety helmets," he said. "If those 250 lb. harpoons miss the whale they explode and cover the area with shrapnel."

In Victoria there is a Greenpeace team of about a dozen headed by Bob Ikle of 3323 Linwood.

Other projects the group is working on include an anti-sealing campaign this winter on the Labrador ice floes. Nine Greenpeace members will use a harmless red dye to stain the coats of baby harp seals to make them commercially worthless. If the seals survive the hunt, they grow new coats.

Phileas and Concorde: A History of Travel

It was just one of those pleasant little coincidences, so cherished by a columnist.

I chanced to be re-reading Jules Verne's "Around the World in 80 Days," perhaps the most durable of all books, when my last-week's mail disgorged a new "background brief" about Concorde, the supersonic airliner soon to go into service. The booklet gives some new figures on the proven time of flights between distant points — San Francisco to Anchorage in two hours and 14 minutes, Boston to Paris and back to Boston in seven hours and 28 minutes, London to Gander in two hours and 19 minutes, and so on.

Though it does not seem to have had the same effect on editors who decide what makes news, Concorde's performance continues to boggle the mind. It is even more boggling if you happen to be reading a travel book from out of the not-too-distant past. Indeed, it is hard to think in human terms of what this faster-than-sound airplane is going to mean to the crossing of new horizons. Any attempt to compare it with the adventures of Phileas Fogg breaks down.

Incidentally, before I forget it, I still think the finest love speech in past or present literature is that of Phileas, a man of great reserve, imperturbable dignity and true British phlegm, who simply melted away before the devotion of Aouda. "I love you!" he cried. "Yes, by all that is holiest, I love you and I am entirely yours!" You're not supposed to ask what this has to do with Concorde).

Even allowing for M. Verne's staggering imagination, we must concede, I think, that travel for profit or pleasure by the standards of 1873 are impossible to equate with the travel that we know in 1975 or that we will come to accept so casually next year when we arrive in the Supersonic Age.

Even so, I fancy that a global circuit by steamer, railway, horse carriage, ice sled and elephant may have been just an eensy-weensy bit more fun than hurtling through the stratosphere at some 1400 miles per hour and we will have to accept the fact that getting to a destination — in some cases — at an earlier hour than when we left is going to take some of the traditional fun from travel.

Phileas, of course, actually made the trip in 79 days (it wasn't like him, having a mind as tidy as a filing cabinet, but he overlooked the fact that by constantly going eastward he gained a full day) yet I wonder seriously if he could maintain the same schedule today.

It seems quite logical in this timeless story that he should leave on the trip the very same evening he'd made the spontaneous bet of 20,000 pounds. But that would never do in today's world. Never do at all.

He'd have to give himself at least two weeks for inoculations, passport renewal, issuance of visas from the countries en route, reservations, confirmations and re-confirmations by the transport companies, traveller's cheques, letters from his clergyman, doctor, banker and police chief and all the rest of the form-filling snarl of red tape peculiar to this enlightened age.

Where Phileas slipped from one country to another as easy as apple pie, the modern-day Fogg would be up to his chin in declarations (in triplicate) swearing that he was not in possession of firearms or a hundred pounds of beeswax or that he'd never planned to overthrow a government by force.

Or, worse, he'd be sitting in waiting rooms, biding his time until some lout of a customs inspector would consent to paw through his luggage and — bang! — there would go his timetable and his wager. Even with Concorde it's expected that the airport-to-city travel time will often exceed the in-flight time.

All that Phileas actually carried in the way of documentation was a red-bound copy of Bradshaw's Railway Steam Transit and General Guide, it got him around the world in 1873. It wouldn't get him across the first fortified border today.

I wonder if the durability of "Around The World in 80 Days" can't be partly explained by the fact that Phileas Fogg is the classic example in literature of a character overcoming the vicissitudes of travel, then and now.

Any reader who has been at the mercy of storm-tossed ships or slide-bound trains or airliners that seemed reluctant to leave the ground on schedule can't help but be the devoted admirer of this fictional hero who took everything with stoicism and found an ingenious way out.

My own years of stored-up fuming and fretting at the inevitable delays and discomfort of getting from one place to another melt away in the face of this fabled man whose simple creed was "The unforeseen does not exist."

When his train across India reached the end of the rails, why, he simply hired that elephant and rode serenely on in the howdah. When his trans-Atlantic steamer ran too short of fuel to keep up speed, he simply purchased the ship and had the crew burn the poop, cabins, bunks and decking to maintain the pressure. What else?

He was, in short, the ideal peripatetic of all time. The Concorde may make his travelling time look ridiculous, perhaps, but who could ever meet a dish like Aouda in a supersonic?

Ask The Times

Q. When was the family allowance program started in Canada? Also the unemployment insurance program and income tax?—E.M.

A. Family allowance cheques started in 1945. Unemployment insurance began as a national program in 1940 with the first premiums being paid in July, 1941, and first payout beginning in February, 1942. Companies began paying income taxes in 1901 but the first personal income tax started in 1917 with the Temporary War Income Tax Act which called for a 4 per cent tax on corporation income and taxes ranging from 4 per cent to 29 per cent on individual incomes. The temporary tax became permanent in 1948 when it was replaced by the Income Tax Act, which was subsequently amended further in 1952 and 1972.

Young Faces Last-Minute Opposition

Unopposed until only a few days ago in his bid for the mayor's office in Victoria, Ald. Mike Young now faces five rivals in the Nov. 15 election.

A flurry of last-minute nominees before today's noon deadline included two virtually unknown candidates both in their 20s: school teacher William McElroy, 215 Linden, and self-styled writer Russell Shillington, 414 Durban.

Joe Richards, a frequent contender for aldermanic elections, also filed papers for the mayoralty, as did realtor William Hollick, who lost to Mayor Peter Pollen in 1973 elections.

Henry Bitterman, who recently sold his real estate business at Douglas and Hillside, was at first refused by city clerk Morran Waller when he attempted to file papers on grounds that he was disqualified under the Municipal Act because he has a "disputed account" with the municipality. Waller later allowed him to file.

(The matter involved a six-foot wide strip of land on Bitterman's former property which the city has been trying to appropriate for more than two years.)

Bitterman was refused on similar grounds when he ran for alderman two years ago, but subsequently appealed and his candidacy was allowed.

He said he is now collecting unemployment insurance, and asked if that was his reason for running said: "Well, I do need a job and I am available."

He has lived in Victoria five years and graduated from University of Victoria in 1973 with a degree in sociology.

Shillington's platform would include the legalizing of all drugs, as a means of reducing the rising crime rate in Victoria.

He said he would also work toward the total exclusion of traffic from city centre, and foster better negotiations between the city and its employees to avoid a recurrence of the recent civic dispute.

Shillington, who has long blond hair said one of his particular reasons for running is to stimulate mayoralty candidate Mike Young into declaring a platform. Young has been too nebulous, he said, adding "I would like to pull him out so he starts talking about certain things."

McElroy, 29, graduated from UVic last year and is registered with the Greater Victoria School District as a substitute teacher. He has lived in Victoria seven years.

He said today he made up his mind to run only a few days ago when reading newspaper accounts of the "great debate on Sunday closing" (the proposed ban on many types of retail activity on Sundays).

"I thought with all the problems Victoria has, housing for instance, it's ridiculous for council to spend all its time arguing about whether people can buy shoes or clothes hangers on a Sunday," he said.

Oak Bay Mayor Brian Smith and three incumbent aldermen were elected by acclaimation, as were the mayors and aldermen of North Saanich and Lake Cowichan.

There will be a three-way race for mayor, incumbent Mayor Ed Lum being challenged by former alderman Mel Couvelier, who resigned midway through a two-year term to enter the race, and newcomer Jim Maxwell.

Biggest surprise in the two-year aldermanic race is the decision of incumbent Bill Campbell not to run. Campbell has served 11 consecutive years on council.

Sidney's promises the liveliest election action outside the core municipalities with four men — three with council experience — seeking the office of retiring Mayor Stan Dear.

There are also five candidates for three council seats, three seeking two one-year terms and two seeking one 13-month term.

POPPIES GOING ON SALE SOON

Poppies soon will go on sale in Greater Victoria for Remembrance week which begins Wednesday, Nov. 5.

This year's target is $22,000, the same as in 1975, with the money to be spent on welfare services for veterans and their dependants.

Walter Logan, chairman of the Remembrance Day Committee, said that in addition to welfare services, revenue from the last two years' campaigns has also helped provide grants to the Royal Canadian Legion's senior citizens housing project in Central Saanich.

The main sales of poppies will take place Nov. 7, 8 and 10 but poppy exhibits and information booths will be in the major shopping centres during the week prior to Remembrance Day.

Regional Board Head Re-elected

Three directors on the Capital Regional Board have been re-elected by acclamation following the close of nominations at noon today.

In Victoria and Esquimalt, mayoralty candidates Mike Young and Art Young (not related) are the only nominees for the single regional board seats open in their municipalities. But both must be elected Nov. 15 before they take their places. In municipalities, only council members are eligible to sit on the regional board.

In total, 13 of the board's 18 seats were up for filling at next month's election. Other directors have a year to run on their two-year terms.

The major contests will be in Saanich, Sooke and Sidney. All three of the Saanich seats on the board are open and there are four nominations, including the three incumbents.

In Sidney, the three aldermen seeking the chair of retiring mayor Stan Doar are also each seeking Sidney's lone regional board seat.

A draft community plan for Sooke, now before the regional board, may be the reason three are vying for the seat left vacant with the retirement of director Ros Dumont.

Dumont's departure and retirement of Colwood director Dick Emery means there will be at least two new regional directors when the new board sits in January.

Following are the nominations with x denoting incumbent.
